A Message to the Army of the United States

IN a birthday interview with the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week, General John J. Pershing sent a message of greetings to the Service. "I am happy," the General of the Armies said, "to send my personal greeting to more than a million and a half soldiers now serving actively in the Army of the United States. Their service in the present emergency is of the utmost importance to the preservation of our national security."

Continuing, General Pershing said, "There is no nation in the world whose citizenry affords better soldiers than the United States. Our men have the spirit and the stamina to defend their country at all costs. This was shown in 1917 and will be again should the need arise. I believe that the training today has been rapid and that units which a few months ago were filled with recruits are now becoming well-knit dependable organizations.

"The country is to be congratulated on the foresight of its leaders who did not wait for hostilities to begin before organizing a defense force. We are particularly fortunate in having as the head of the War Department that accomplished and experienced statesman, the Honorable Henry L. Stimson, and as head of the Army, that able and seasoned soldier, General George C. Marshall."

The Modest Soldier in Whose Glory the Nation Glows

Sub Attack on Greer Focuses Press Comment on Navy Activities

AS America's newspaper public read last week of the submarine attack on the USS Greer on the American side of the Atlantic Ocean near Iceland, and the subsequent statement by President Roosevelt that Navy vessels had been ordered to "eliminate" the marauding submarine if it be found, major attention was once again focused on the Navy and its role in National Defense. While front page headlines heralded news of the attack, editorials throughout the country were explaining and commenting on varied activities of the Navy.

The Herald, Boston, Mass., commenting on the $10 monthly bonus which has been given enlisted men of the Regular Army, National Guard, and selectees states that this bonus should be broadened to include enlisted men of the Navy. The Herald in its editorial quotes remarks made by Senator Walsh, chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, during the recent debate on the Service Extension Act. "We shall be glad to have the precedent of increased wages and salaries to the army personnel because it will help us to get it for the navy."

Following Senator Walsh's remarks, the Herald says, "We may expect that the increase of $10 a month in the pay of draftees after the first twelve months will be met very soon by a rise in the navy's scale, although service there is not compulsory. Navy officials will naturally argue that one branch should not be favored more than the other and that the prevailing relation in wages and salaries should be maintained."

The Telegraph, Nashua, N. H., in a simple and direct editorial says, "It is only logical that this additional ten bucks on the pay check monthly, should come to the sailors too, and it will if Senator Walsh has his way about it."

New interjection into Navy press opinion is made by the Baltimore, Md., News and Post, which comments on the expansion of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. The News and Post says, "In addition to the expanding demand of the United States Navy for trained officer personnel, according to Admiral Willson, it is desirable to make the facilities available to students from Latin-American nations."

Condemning this expansion of facilities at Annapolis the News and Post adds, "the Annapolis institution, efficient and admirable and girded with traditions as it of course is, cannot possibly be enlarged to fulfill the pressing needs of the American Navy alone, much less to be an adequate training school on a good-neighbor basis."

The Vice President Grooms General Pershing

"GENERAL Pershing's name will always stand for the best traditions of the modern American army. He has understood the army and he has understood world affairs, and in these days of crisis his counsel is highly valued. It is an honor and a pleasure to join the long list of his friends in extending birthday greetings."

Naval Reserve Selections

The President this week approved the recommendations of the Board which selected one officer of the Naval Reserve for promotion to the grade of rear admiral, and two officers of the line of the Naval Reserve for promotion to the grade of captain.

Capt. Albert B. Randall, class D-M, was recommended by the board for promotion to the grade of rear admiral.

Comdr. John L. Callan, class A-V(8), and Comdr. Thomas Blau, class D-M, were recommended by the board for promotion to captain, United States Naval Reserve.

Captain Randall has held a masters' license for nearly 33 years and before retirement from the service of the United States Lines on 2 Oct. 1939, he was commodore of the United States Lines Fleet, in which he served variously as master of the SS Manhattan and the SS Leviathan. Captain Randall has held commissions in the U. S. Naval Reserve organization since 12 May 1902, and his World War record shows he commanded the USS Bridgeport, the USS Teresa, the USS Sudbury, and the USS Standard Arrow, and that from 3 May 1918, until 20 Sept. 1918, he was Commodore of convoys. Captain Randall holds the Chevalier French Legion of Honor Medals for the World War service, and a commendation from the Navy Department for "initiative and seamanship" displayed while commanding officer of the USS Standard Arrow.

Commander Callan was graduated from the Albany Military Academy, Albany, N. Y. His service record shows he enrolled as lieutenant in the U. S. N. R. flying corps, 20 Feb. 1917, and subsequently was promoted to lieutenant commander on 23 March 1918, and to commander on 14 May 1919. During the World War, he was in charge of construction and organization and commanded the U. S. Naval Air Station, at Moutchic Le Croisic and the Ile Tudy, France.

Commander Blau entered the Naval Service

Army "Purge" Underway as 170 Officers are Cited

Following a statement by Secretary of War Stimson Thursday that it is "painful to purge officers who are faithful and loyal," it was revealed that 170 officers of the Regular Army have been recommended for removal from the active list under the provisions of the new "plucking board" act.

"I am pleased to note," Secretary Stimson said, "that the Army is taking one step now, responding to the necessity of improving leadership. It is always painful to purge officers who are faithful and loyal, because they are not able to help. But it is a step that must be taken, and the General Staff is working on the plans."

"When the work gets under way I expect the brickbats to fly through my office and that of General Marshall. But the Army has to go on the principle that we will give these men the very best leaders that we can."

in Aug., 1917, and before returning to inactive status at the end of the World War achieved the rank of commander. During the War, he served on the USS May, and the USS Calamaries.

Navy Dress Regulations

The Navy Department has approved a modification of uniform regulations to permit the wearing of the regulation black bow tie with the blue service uniform in the evening. It was announced that senior officers present, in their discretion, may prescribe the wearing of such a tie with the regulation shirt approved for use with the blue service uniform.

Commended for Rescue

For his "courageous action" in the rescue of a drowning civilian, Ens. William J. Wallace, Jr., USNR, was this week commended by Secretary of the Navy Knox.

General Pershing's Portrait

The portrait of General Pershing which appears on the cover of this issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is a reproduction of an oil painting by the famous artist, Mr. E. Hodgson Smart. The painting was made in Mr. Smart's studio shortly after the World War. Mr. Smart has also painted portraits of former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker and Marshal Foch.

That another Naval Academy should be established is the belief of the News and Post which says, "The great need of the Navy is not for a bigger Annapolis, but an entirely NEW Annapolis, with duplication and multiplication of its facilities on a scale proportionate with the rapidly expanding fleet and shore units, and bases." The News and Post maintains that this new Naval Academy should be established on the Pacific Coast. Concluding its editorial, the News and Post says, "A Pacific Coast Naval Academy has been proposed many times in Congress and has been ably advocated by foresighted statesmen and highest-ranking naval authorities, but unfortunately has never been able to surmount the inertia in which the project has always been bogged."

Three editorials, in a somewhat lighter vein, discuss the new regulations issued by the Navy Department which state that swords are no longer integral to an officer's uniform.

The Journal, Providence, R. I., says, "One day perhaps, when the tempest is stilled, the ceremonious sword may appear again on deck. Now as always—to paraphrase an ancient saying that applies appropriately in this instance—the arm is strong enough that hold the sword of justice and readiness, even if there's no traditional sword and scabbard at the side."

The Times-Star, Cincinnati, Ohio, presents a brief history of the sword in its editorial explaining that, "Swords were first made of wood, then of bronze, and now of steel. It is surrendered in token of submission, kissed in token of homage, broken as a superlative degradation." The Times-Star concludes, "Once seaman, boarding other vessels or repelling boarders, wielded cutlasses. Naval warfare has become less personal, more deadly."

Deeply moved by the new order, the Kansas City Star, Mo., says, "It may be that swords have lost something of their combat value now that naval engagements are fought at ranges of eighteen or twenty miles. But what about the weddings? What will the young ensign and bride pass under," the Star asks, "when they leave the church between two rows of fellow-classesmen?"

The Independent, Massillon, Ohio, notes with satisfaction the recent awarding by the Navy of 14 "E" flags to manufacturers doing Navy work. The Independent, after explaining the award, says, "This is as it should be. Every man jack of them who does his bit contributes to the efficiency not only of the plant but of the navy for which he is working and for the United States."

U. S. TROOPS IN BRITISH GUIANA
BY CHAPLAIN MARSHALL G. MINES
APO No. 807, British Guiana

THE group of United States Army Officers and men, known as the "Brown Force" sailed from New York early in July and arrived in Trinidad after a quiet voyage. The personnel of the Trinidad Base Command gave us a warm welcome to the tropics and we proceeded to our own base in small parties. After a rather cramped voyage on a too-small transport, the first contingent of American troops ever to land in South America dropped anchor in the broad harbor of Georgetown, British Guiana. The American Counsel brought a party of British officials aboard and after due respects and words of welcome had been offered and accepted, we sailed on up the Demarara River to our Base. It was about noon of Sunday, 20 July, when we pulled into the small dock and first set our foot on South American soil. Everyone was filled with hopes, fears, anticipation and expectation. What surprises lay in store for us, we knew not.

We had heard such lurid tales about the primitiveness of the jungle that we were prepared for almost anything. Imagine our surprise when we saw a beautiful wooded plateau stretching up from the river bank to our camp. We had come prepared to sleep in tents on the ground, but found that large comfortable barracks had been built for us. These barracks, accommodating some forty men each, are elevated about ten feet off the ground and staggered in their arrangements with each other so as to insure maximum ventilation and breeze. The upper half of the walls are screened and protected by wide eaves which make the days comfortable and the nights definitely cool. We had been warned of the terrific heat but to date we have found that the temperature is very moderate (New York was much hotter) and there is almost always a breeze. We wear the regular summer uniform of cotton khaki with the tropical sun-helmet. At night, we often sleep under sheets.

The campsite is located in the midst of what was, a few months ago, a veritable jungle. The terrifying accounts of snakes, wild animals and insects that infest the South American jungle gave us little desire to go beyond the edge of our clearing. However, when some of the more venturesome men did make excursions into the brush, we found that we were again to be surprised. Actually, we have seen only a few snakes (Texas has more) only three of four alligators (they are much more plentiful in Florida) and no wild animals at all, unless you can count the monkeys and parrots which many of the men have tamed for pets. Almost every barracks now has its own parrot and monkey cages. The parrots scream and gawk at you and make very efficient alarm clocks in the mornings. It is not at all strange to see men walking around with a monkey on their shoulder or head and if you stop and talk with them, the monkey will leap over on your arm in a very friendly manner. While the insects are very plentiful, none seem to be dangerous except perhaps the malaria mosquitoes from which we protect ourselves by sleeping under mosquito bars. The inch long ants, three inch grasshoppers, and beetles as big as toads are all very fascinating, but not to be feared. The flies and gnats are a nuisance but not much more than in the states. All in all, the jungle has been very fascinating and so far no one has been hurt or even frightened.

Life here is not what it would be at home but we have our conveniences. Mail comes and goes three times each week (thirty cents per half ounce for mail). Our theatre operates five nights a week. Our Post Exchange has Coca Cola and beer. We have our own library, phonographs, radios, and game room. Badminton, volley ball, boxing and baseball will be available shortly. The swimming pool is under construction and our men can go to Georgetown occasionally. So it goes without saying that we have done all that Honored by our association with you when you were ordered to command what became the powerful and victorious American Expeditionary Forces, we recall with pride the service we rendered under your direction. Urges Naval Coast Command

Representative Melvin Maas, of Minn., ranking Republican on the House Naval Affairs Committee, back at the Capital after a tour of active duty as a colonel in the Marine Corps, is more convinced than ever before of the necessity for a unity of military command.

Colonel Maas asserted that the creation of a Coastal Command under the Navy is particularly needed. "Whether this is done now or we wait until we are actually in war is the only question," he declared. "Such a command is essential. It should include all fixed coast defenses, Army bombers for coast defense, and Naval submarines, destroyers and aircraft designated for coastal work. It should be under Naval command because the targets are naval targets."

By unity of command, the Congressman explained, he does not mean a Department of National Defense, but a unity of military command such as is contemplated in the bill he has introduced looking toward the setting up of a National Defense General Staff.

As to his observations in the Navy, Colonel Maas said that he feels the greatest need now is for a speeding up of the training program. Modern ships need highly trained personnel, he said, and to produce these either the output of existing schools should be increased or more trade schools built.

The aviation arm needs more training in service type planes, he declared. There is a shortage of service type training planes and this probably will become more acute as we send additional planes to Russia.

Representative Maas said that he was thoroughly in accord with the bill introduced by Chairman Vinson to set up commissioned rank for warrant officers. As a matter of fact, he said, the bill grew out of conferences he had with the Chairman. The measure, he pointed out, would offer opportunity for advancement to the only group of Naval personnel which is now deadlocked.

Newfoundland Command Change

Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Brant, USA, was relieved this week from command of the Gulf Coast Air Corps Training Center, Randolph Field, Tex., and was assigned to command the Newfoundland Base Command, Saint John's, Newfoundland. General Brant relieves Brig. Gen. Henry W. Harms, USA, who is assigned to command the Army Air Base, Pendleton, Ore.

Reassignment of Regular Officers

Army commanders, Corps Area commanders, and the Chief of the Armored Force have been authorized to assign and reassign, including transfers involving a permanent change of station, Regular Army officers serving under their respective jurisdiction.

Corps Area Commanders will issue orders for permanent change of station including orders for travel beyond the limits of their Corps Area of Regular Army officers (residing within their Corps Area) upon request of the commanders mentioned above under whom the officers are serving. This authority is limited to change of station between units under control of the commander making the request.

Corps Area commanders are authorized to issue orders for permanent change of station of Regular Army officers who are assigned to their Corps Area Service Command. This authorization is restricted to movements within the Corps Area Service Command.

Assignments and reassignments must be appropriate to the arm or service in which the officer is commissioned or to which he has been detailed by the War Department.

Changes in assignment of officers from one jurisdiction to another will continue to be made by the War Department and this authority does not restrict the War Department in any way in assigning or reassigning Regular Army officers at any time.

The new authority does not include:

(1) The assignment or reassignment of general officers.

(2) Assignments in excess of strengths allotted by the War Department or announced in War Department Tables of Organization, including authorized overstrengths.

(3) Assignment or reassignment of officers assigned as Finance Officers, United States Army (paragraph nine, AR 35-5).

Retirements Announced

The Navy Department announced last week the retirement of three officers and five enlisted men, as follows:

For physical disability, effective 1 Sept.—Comdr. George T. Howard, Lt. Comdr. Clarence B. Haugen, Lt. Comdr. Isaac S. K. Reeves, Jr., Chief Boatswain Luther Maynard, Chief Machinist Harry "J" Jurlens, Chief Radio Electrician Chester S. Denton, Chief Boatswain Wilbur D. Platt.

After 30 years' service, effective 1 Oct.—Chief Gunner Lloyd McK. Harmon.

Senate Leader Urges Study of Service Pay

A comprehensive study of the pay of personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard is being urged upon the Senate by Senator Lister Hill, Majority Whip and member of the Committee on Military Affairs.

The movement was started Monday, 8 Sept., when Senator Hill introduced a resolution directing the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, or a subcommittee of that group, to make a study of enlisted pay and report "as soon as practicable" the results of its study together with its recommendations for necessary legislation.

While the wording of the resolution specified only the pay of enlisted personnel, Senator Hill told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that it is his plan to have the entire schedule of service pay investigated—commissioned, warrant and nurses, as well as enlisted men.

Senator Hill is particularly fitted, both from the military standpoint and that of a legislator, to take a leading part in such a study. During the World War, he attended an officers training school, was commissioned and served with the 17th and 71st Infantry Regiments, relinquishing his provisional commission after the termination of hostilities. Before entering the Senate, he served for many years in the House of Representatives where he was a member, and later chairman, of the House Committee on Military Affairs.

The Senator said that he is concerned over the pay of the junior commissioned officers of the armed services. Particularly inadequate, in his view, is the pay of the second lieutenant—a condition which he points out is much aggravated when the officer is married and has dependents.

The text of Senator Hill's resolution, which has been referred to the Military Affairs Committee, follows:

"Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs of the Senate, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized and directed to make a full and complete study and investigation of the existing laws relating to the pay of all enlisted personnel of the military and naval services of the United States, including persons inducted for training and service into the land or naval forces under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, members of Reserve components of the Army of the United States in or subject to active military service, and the United States Coast Guard, with a view to determining what adjustments and increases in the pay of such personnel are necessary or desirable in the interests of the national defense. The committee shall report to the Senate as soon as practicable the results of such study and investigation, together with its recommendations for necessary legislation.

"For the purposes of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions, recesses, and adjourned periods of the Senate in the Seventy-seventh and succeeding Congresses, to employ such experts, and such clerical, stenographic, and other assistants, to require by subpoena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such correspondence, books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures, as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman."

No Photo of Fine Offices

America's pictorial-minded public, always appreciative of beautiful snapshots, will be deprived of a real pleasure as a result of a new regulation which prohibits War Department personnel from carrying cameras into the new War Department Building, 21st St., and New York Ave., N. W. No pictorialist will capture for posterity the indirect lighting, the marbled halls the glass doors and panelling, the abend of date furniture in this movie-set building. Few cared when this order was directed against taking pictures in the uninspiring Munitions Building.

we can to make ourselves as comfortable as possible. Most of our food is canned for we are still examining and investigating the local markets for fresh vegetables, meats and dairy products. These will be available soon, we hope. The Camp is still under construction in many places and we are all looking forward to the day when quarters will be available and we can bring our families here. How soon that will be, we cannot tell. Perhaps in a few months.

The reception we have received from the local British people has been more than cordial. The negro workers are friendly and bring us bananas, pineapples, mangoes, and several types of strange tropical fruit. They seem to be an educated people for the most part and are skilled craftsmen in their trades. Beautifully carved furniture and hammered silver jewelry are not rare. Carpenters, plumbers, electricians, stenographers, bookkeepers, mechanics and radio operators are to be found among them. Georgetown, which is the principal city in British Guiana, has a population of about seventy thousand. This number is rather unevenly divided between Negroes, Chinese, and whites. The shops and stores are plentiful though the war has had its effect upon their stock and prices. However, the families of U. S. Army officers, officials and workers of the construction company, who live in Georgetown, do not find that city unattractive. Houses and apartment rentals average $100 per month. Expenses at either of the two hotels (Park Hotel and Tower Hotel) average $75 per person per month. Language, law and custom all reflect the English background and the architecture is definitely tropical. It is a busy seaport with ships of all nations arriving and departing daily. Sugar, rum, rubber and lumber are the principal exports. The great forests of British Guiana are teeming with "Greenheart" which is the heaviest of known woods and is excellent for docks, pilings, etc. It weighs about seventy pounds to the cubic foot. The theatres and restaurants are not too plentiful but there are several good places for amusement and refreshment.

Many of our men are homesick of course. Not because they are here, but because they are away from their families, friends and loved ones. Everyone seems to try and help the others "snap-out-of-it" and the "Esprit de corps" is rapidly rising to become the "Big family" kind of spirit that gives everyone the feeling that it is "all for one and one for all." For the most part we are happy here, though of course there is the usual "Griping" which is always a soldiers right and privilege. The cooperation between officers and men is excellent and morale is surprisingly high. Even though we love our homeland and miss our friends, we are enjoying British Guiana and every day brings something new and different as we are constantly surprised at South America.

The Army's Message to General Pershing

To General Pershing:

"The greetings and congratulations of the Army of the United States go to you on this birthday. Your leadership and deeds constitute an inspiring example to the soldiers of 1941."

General George C. Marshall,
Chief of Staff, U. S. Army.

Maneuver Casualties

Despite the rigors of field maneuvers this fall, the War Department anticipates that for the 752,000 troops participating, the accident and death rates will be considerably lower than corresponding rates for civilians.

The Medical Department has made extensive preparations to handle all first aid and hospital cases in the field.

Casualties are expected to be more numerous during maneuvers than during preliminary training in camps because of the greatly increased activities under simulated war conditions.

In making the following casualty estimates the Surgeon General of the Army emphasized that factors are so variable that liberal interpretation should be made of the figures involved:

	Sept. 1941	Nov. 1941
No. of troops participating	450,000	302,000
Expected admissions to hospital:
Disease	30,000	22,500
Injury	10,000	7,500
Total	40,000	30,000
Expected deaths:
Disease	17	30
Injury	119	70
Total	136	100

Figures listed above include anticipated casualties for both the ground and air forces.

Modern Paul Revere A Kilocycle Rider!

Newest development of RCA Laboratories, the RCA Alert Receiver is about the size of a portable radio set and as easy to carry. It operates from an ordinary light socket, either AC or DC, and can be switched to batteries in the event of damage to power lines.

NEW RCA LABORATORIES DEVELOPMENT...

*RCA Alert Receiver a notable contribution to civilian defense.
Turned on and off by broadcasting station!*

An emergency warning signal is flashed through space by a radio station. Instantly and automatically, the new RCA Alert Receiver in the home leaps into action, ringing a bell or sounding a siren.

Sleepers are aroused. Listeners are summoned. And then, through its loudspeaker, this modern Paul Revere brings them air-raid instructions or other important messages with the speed of light.

Amazingly simple in design and construction, the RCA Alert Receiver can be produced at a cost approximating that of the average low-priced table model radio. Requiring very little power for operation, it can be used with surprising economy, 24 hours a day over a long period of time.

Even more simple is the transmitting apparatus, which consists of a vacuum tube oscillator generating two sub-audible frequencies. One turns the receiver on, the other turns it off. Installation requires no change in normal broadcast station wiring.

The RCA Alert Receiver is important to National Defense because it makes possible a local, regional or nation-wide instantaneous radio call service. With this new development, the public service of radio is once more expanded—thanks to RCA research.

Navy's Message to General Pershing

"Dear General Pershing:

"Just a note to send my best wishes to you on the occasion of your birthday.

"I know that I speak for the entire Naval Service in wishing you many more years of health, happiness, and conspicuous national achievement."

Very sincerely yours,
H. B. Stark,
Chief of Naval Operations.

Graduate 375 Supply Officers

Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, Rear Adm. William T. Tarrant, USN, commandant of the First Naval District, and Rear Adm. Ray Spear, (SC), USN, Paymaster General, attended graduation ceremonies of a class of 375 reserve ensigns in the Supply Corps, USNR, held at the Navy Supply Corps School at Boston, on 12 September. The school facilities at Boston are supplied by the School of Business Administration of Harvard University.

The present graduating class is the first to complete the full course of instruction since the transfer of the Navy Supply

School from Philadelphia to Boston.

Upon detachment from the Navy Supply Corps School, the reserve officers are being assigned to duty afloat, ashore and on foreign station. Capt. Kenneth C. McIntosh, (SC), USN-Ret., is officer in charge of the school.

Marine Corps Notes

Maj. Gen. L. McCarty Little, USMC, commanding general of the Marine Corps Barracks, Quantico, Va., delivered the main address at graduation exercises for some 300 second lieutenants of the Marine Corps Reserve who completed three months' training at the fifth reserve officers' class, Quantico, Va., this week. The new second lieutenants will be retained on active duty with the Marine Corps and assigned to various elements of the Fleet Marine Force, or attend special service schools.

General Little emphasized three specific requisites for success in their profession: first, loyalty and devotion to their men; second, aggressiveness and initiative in opposition to inertia; and third, resourcefulness. General Little was introduced to the graduating class by Brig. Gen. S. M. Harrington, commandant of the Marine Corps Schools.

Maj. Gen. H. M. Smith, and Col. Roy S. Geiger, will leave shortly to attend the field maneuvers between the Second and Third Armies which are scheduled to start on 15 Sept.

Marine Corps troops stationed in Iceland are considering adoption of the figure of a falcon or the old Viking helmet as a battle blaze or corps marking device to supplant the polar bear now worn. Several thousand polar bear blazes were presented to the Marines by the British troop commanders when the Americans landed in Iceland, but the Marines feel that some device or blaze more appropriate to Iceland should be adopted.

The Navy Department announced this week the appointment of two R.O.T.C. graduates as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, to rank from 2 Sept. They are: Ernest E. Schott, of La Grange, Tex., and James R. Crockett, Jonesboro, Ark.

New Cruisers

The Navy's intensified shipbuilding program showed additional results last week with the launching of the 6,000-ton cruisers, the USS Atlanta and the USS San Juan, and the laying of the keel for the 10,000-ton cruiser Wilkes-Barre—all of which occurred in the same day.

The new cruisers, whose designs call for speed almost equaling that of the new destroyers, are reported to be armed with twelve 5-inch guns in the main battery, in addition to six 21-inch torpedo tubes. They are equipped with high-pressure, high-temperature boilers and new-type machinery that will make them "quick and easy to handle" and from the huge boilers will come tremendous pressure that is required to take them through the sea at thirty-seven knots or better.

Father, 50, Joins Navy Sons

While officers and crew were drawn up at attention, Capt. F. W. Scandland, USN, commanding officer of the USS Nevada, this week administered the Navy enlistment oath to Clarence F. Patten, 50 year old farmer, who joins seven enlisted sons aboard the battleship.

By his enlistment, Mr. Patten will see duty with sailor sons Clarence, Jr., Myrre, Roy, Marvin, Allen, Gilbert, and Bruce, all of whom are serving in the USS Nevada's fireroom. An eighth son, Wayne H. Patten, 16, plans to enlist when he becomes eligible in 1942.

Immediately after the administering of the oath, Secretary of the Navy Knox spoke on a special N.B.C. hook-up linking Washington, D. C. with the Nevada. He congratulated the elder Patten on his all-Navy family.

The President has approved recommendations of the Line Selection Board which selected 12 officers of the grade of captain for promotion to the grade of rear admiral, and 147 officers of the grade of commander for promotion to the grade of captain.

U. S. COAST GUARD

UNDER the direction of Rear Adm. Russell R. Waesche, commandant, a preliminary study is being conducted to put into effect in the Coast Guard a recent act of Congress which provides for temporary promotions in the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. As a result of this study, Coast Guard officials will determine the number of promotions they will recommend in the various grades.

Coast Guard officials are awaiting the outcome of the Navy Department's action in submitting a request to the Comptroller General for a decision concerning the payment of a $10 monthly bonus to enlisted men of the Navy who serve longer than one year.

If the Comptroller General allows this request, enlisted men of the Coast Guard will automatically receive the bonus, since pay of the Coast Guard is assimilated with that of the Navy.

Designed to result in a greater clarification in the addressing and subsequent receiving of correspondence (a new Coast Guard regulation announced this week changes the official designation of Coast Guard units. The words Coast Guard will henceforth prefix the official designation of units. Thus in the following examples, the Provincetown Station hereafter will be designated as Coast Guard Station, Provincetown, Mass.; the St. George Depot, as Coast Guard Depot, St. George, N. Y.; the Ft. Lauderdale Base, as Coast Guard Base, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., etc.

During the month of August, 923 men enlisted in the Coast Guard, highest number to be enlisted during one month in several years. A total of 599 men enlisted in the Coast Guard during June, while 779 enlisted in July. During the first ten days of September, enlistments were 30 per cent above the corresponding period in August. Coast Guard officials anticipate a still greater increase in enlistments at the conclusion of the harvest season in the midwest. It is believed that the extension of service of selectees has helped Coast Guard enlistments. On duty in the regular Coast Guard service are 19,191 enlisted men, while an additional 492 are on duty in the Coast Guard Reserve.

Capt. Thomas A. Shanley, USCG, has reported for duty as commander, Chicago District.

Capt. Stephen S. Yeandle, USCG, and Capt. Wales A. Benham, USCG, visited headquarters at Washington, D. C., this week.

The Navy Department is reconditioning the Aetna, Saginaw, Lake Chelan, John Gehm, J. Floyd Massey, Jr., and Nourmahal for use by the Coast Guard as Weather Station vessels. The reconditioning work on these vessels is being accomplished by private shipyards at Boston, New York, and Baltimore. The Nourmahal, turned over to the Coast Guard by Mr. Vincent Astor, famous yachtsman, will be utilized as flagship for the Weather Patrol.

On 2 Sept., Headquarters issued orders changing the permanent stations of certain 125-foot cutters, effective after the return of the vessels to their respective Districts from the Coast Guard Yard, where the vessels will undergo certain repairs and alterations, including the installation of buoy derricks for servicing aids to navigation. The vessels affected are the Ewing from Boston, Mass., to Seattle, Wash.; Diligence from Boston, Mass., to San Pedro, Calif.; Active from New London, Conn. to New York, N. Y.; McLane from Morehead City, N. C. to Ketchikan, Alaska; Colfax from New York, N. Y., to Philadelphia, Pa.; and Crawford from New York, N. Y. to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

"We should be blind to existing conditions if we did not realize that, with all the nations of the world armed and prepared for war, we must be ourselves in a similar condition, in order to prevent other nations from taking advantage of us and of our inability to defend our interests and assert our rights with a strong hand."

—WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Legislative assurance, now, that our land, sea, and air forces will be maintained at such strengths as may be determined by the War Department General Staff and the General Board of the Navy to be necessary to guard the nation and its interests against any enemy or combination of enemies.
2. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant and enlisted personnel, active and retired; all temporarily promoted officers to receive pay of grade in which serving.
3. A long range study by the General Board of the Navy to the end that an equitable and just system of promotion for the line and staff of the Navy and Marine Corps be enacted into law.
4. Revision of pension laws to assure service widows a living income.
5. Compensation for service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.

WITH this day, another milestone is passed by the General of the Armies of the United States. It is a day of gratification for the Nation and the Services, of gratification that John J. Pershing continues with us, giving of his mental and physical strength to promote the interests of the country, and to watch the development of the Armed Forces essential for their protection. The coming of this new World War was apprehended by the General when, in spite of his advice, the Allied and American Armies consented to the Armistice of 1918. It was his view then—and strongly he impressed it upon President Wilson and his associates—that military operations should not be halted until after the occupation of Berlin. He wanted to bring the evil consequences of war home to the German people as well as their Army, and to make them realize that it would not pay to fight again. He was overruled, the Armistice, followed by a Peace Treaty, was entered into, and German troops returned to their firelines, hailed as the protectors of German soil. With this faith in German arms, and with the belief that while the Kaiser had been defeated, the German soldier had been victorious as long as the home front remained unbroken, it was not surprising that Hitler found the restoration of militarism easy, and an acquiescent people ready for another attempt at conquest. Different would have been the situation had General Pershing's advice been observed. However this may be, the Leader of the American Armies that inflicted crushing defeats upon the German troops, now foresees that the job must be done over again, and done thoroughly. Therefore, in his age of counsel, he is drawing upon his ripe experience to guide us on the path of preparedness. Thus still he serves, and in this service stands as a symbol of American citizenship that the officers and men on land and sea and in the air can regard as their ideal in performing the duty of safeguarding America and its vital interests, which now has devolved upon them.

THE critical situation in which the United States finds itself today in relation to the warring powers of Europe and Asia, places a burden of enormous responsibility upon the shoulders of the officers and men of the United States Navy. Under the policy of aid to the Allies the products of the "Arsenal of Democracy" are making their way across both the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans. In each ocean belligerents with whom we are officially at peace dispute our rights to the seas' highways. It is the Navy's task to keep these lanes open, not only for the supplies of the Allies, but also for our communications with our bases in the north Atlantic, the Caribbean and the far reaches of the Pacific. Under the new orders given by President Roosevelt our Navy will, hereafter, shoot first at any Axis surface raider or submarine found in our defensive waters. That this will be done with a firm hand is evident from the action of Commander Frost of the USS Greer, who promptly returned the fire of the submarine which attacked his vessel. Despite the false version of the affair given out by the Germans—that the Greer was the first to give offense—the American people have implicit confidence in the tact and integrity of the Navy. They know the Navy is not seeking war and is acting only in defense of American rights. It may be expected that such incidents will increase and that the skill and temper of the Navy will be called upon to preserve the integrity of the nation. The next step will be the arming of merchant vessels with naval guns and Naval gun crews.

It is for just such great responsibilities that the Navy has been training, that officers have been schooled in diplomacy as well as in sea-warfare, and that enlisted men have learned and practiced the many and varied skills required in the operation of a Fleet. The American people have confidence in their Navy.

Mistaken Identity

Randolph Field—A staff sergeant mechanic at Randolph Field, Tex., nursed a blackened eye last week when he talked at the wrong time. Another soldier and his feminine escort were passing by when the sergeant said:

"What a beautiful nose! That landing gear, and look at how she purrs for that guy. Man alive!"

The passing soldier stopped, turned, and exploded, and before the sergeant could say "boo" it was the traditional prize ring "one-two" and a blackened eye.

The sergeant explained later he was referring to a new airplane making a landing and not the soldier's girl friend.

Sgt.: "I forgot myself today and spoke sharply to my wife."

Other Sgt.: "Did she resent it?"

Sgt.: "For a moment she did. But Kay is a fair-minded woman—after she had thought it over, she shook hands with me and congratulated me on my pluck."

Memoirs of a Fly

A fly and her daughter were walking on the head of a man who was very bald. "How things change, my dear," she said. "When I was your age, this was only a footpath."

—The Pointer.

Best response to the limerick which appeared in the 30 August issue was, in the opinion of the judges, that of Pvt. "REB" who contributed the closing line which appears below.

There was once a sailor named Lee,
Who loved the rough life of the sea.

But imagine his surprise,

When he did surmise,

His transfer to duty in Washington,
D. C.

For completion in the 27 September issue, Mr. "REG" has submitted the following limerick which we have chosen from among many entries.

There was once a soldier named Nat,
Who was rough, tough, and fat.

One day he did scold,

A soldier too bold.

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

R.A.R.'s—Regular Army Reservists are entitled to count only service rendered since their recall to duty under Public Resolution 96, in computing the year of service which entitles them to the new $10 bonus.

J.E.C.—Army states no regulation prohibits promotion of retired men who are recalled to active duty. Of course, if retired men are promoted, upon their return to inactive status they revert to the grade in which they originally retired.

T.F.C.—Although complete regulations to carry out the new Army warrant officer legislation have not yet been issued, it is not believed that retired warrant officers will be affected in any way. Pay increases are not given by the act to warrant officers, as such, but only to those who are appointed chief warrant officers, and no provisions of the act are retroactive.

H.S.W.—Army commanders are now authorized to honorably discharge enlisted men of Army of U. S. to permit them to accept appointments in Naval Reserve, provided they present letters from Navy to show they will be accepted by that service.

G.R.S.—The $10 per month additional paid Army men is a bonus, not an addition to pay. Longevity, etc., will not increase the amount.

The Army is awaiting for the promulgation of the appointments to positions in the new regiments. The return of General Grant to Washington will probably be soon followed by the final settlement of this important matter.

Greetings To General Pershing From His West Point Classmates

IT is with keen satisfaction that we, your classmates, greet your entrance upon another year of your distinguished life. We remember you as the lad who entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, who quickly demonstrated possession of soldierly qualities, and who throughout your career have observed the Maxim of our Alma Mater, "Duty, Honor, Country." We know that your imperishable deeds live in the hearts of your associates and the American people as a whole, and will always live in the history of the Nation. On this, your birthday, we offer you as an example to the Officers and men of the Armies being created, and commend your career to them as one which they will be honored in following. We extend to you on this birthday our sincere congratulations, and wish for your continuance in health and happiness, and, what we know you desire above all, further duty to the country you have so ably served.

Never too busy to be Good Neighbors

THERE are a lot of workers in the Bell System—about 350,000 of them. That's a big family and it likes to be a friendly kind of family.

Whether it be the installer in the house, the people in our offices, the operators or the line-man on the roadside helping to rescue a stray kitten for a worried youngster, telephone workers are close to the public and the tradition of the job is helpfulness.

Even in these days when the needs of defense place sudden and increasing demands on telephone workers, they are never too busy to be good neighbors.

Bell Telephone System

"The Telephone Hour" is broadcast every Monday. (N.B.C. Red Network, 8 P. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.)

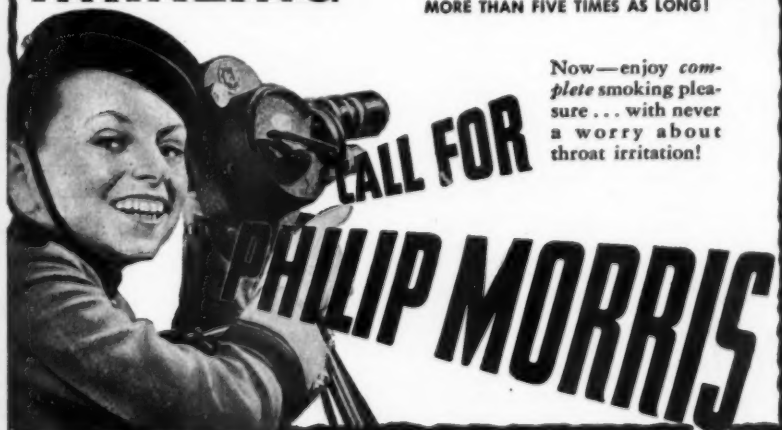

PICTURE OF YOU INHALING

Every smoker does, sometimes—increasing exposure to irritation. But consider! Eminent doctors report—

On comparing—the irritant quality in the smoke of the four other leading brands was found to average more than THREE TIMES that of the strikingly contrasted Philip Morris . . . and the irritation LASTS MORE THAN FIVE TIMES AS LONG!

Now—enjoy complete smoking pleasure . . . with never a worry about throat irritation!

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—When the recent attack upon the Greer and the sinking of American ships in the vicinity of Iceland, in the South Atlantic and the Red Sea, are compared with the submarining of American shipping during the World War I, one is struck by the identity of policy of the Governments of Hitler and the Kaiser, and the similarity of the attitude thereto observed by the United States, as expressed by Presidents Roosevelt and Wilson. The Secretary of State a quarter of a century ago was Robert Lansing, who held the opinion that "the military oligarchy which rules Germany is a bitter enemy to democracy in every form; that, if that oligarchy triumphs over the liberal Governments of Great Britain and France, it will then turn upon us as its next obstacle to imperial rule over the world; that it is safer and surer and wiser for us to be one of many enemies than to be in the future alone against a victorious Germany." Obviously from what President Roosevelt has said, this is likewise his view of Germany today.

Interestingly enough, the domestic situation at this time resembles that which Mr. Lansing described before President Wilson moved in response to the unrestricted submarine warfare decreed by the Berlin Government. "Our people are not aroused to a sufficient pitch of indignation against the barbarism of the Germans," he wrote. "It is hard to comprehend this apparent indifference, but the fact that it exists cannot be doubted. The course pursued by the German Government finds many apologists in this country. Their arguments are based upon shipments of supplies to the Allies and the blockade of neutral ports through which goods go forward to Germany. There is plausibility about these arguments which appeals to the pro-German and the anti-English elements in our population, and they are sufficiently potent to prevent our presenting a united front to Germany. The people are divided in sentiment. I do not believe the Congress would favor drastic action, and would be resentful if the President should act without their authorization. It is a humiliating position, but some way will have to be found to postpone definite action until there is a change among a portion of our people."

Faced with a like division of American sentiment, both in the country and Congress, the President, instead of formally addressing the latter, deemed it desirable to present to the people his action and the reasons therefor in the radio address he delivered Thursday night. American naval vessels patrolling our defensive waters will hereafter shoot first at any Axis vessel found on the surface or under the water. To the declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare, President Wilson dismissed the German Ambassador. This he followed with the arming of merchant ships, and, finally, with a recommendation to Congress to declare war. It is now clear that at the latest conference between Hitler and Mussolini on the Russian front, those dictators discussed the effect of American aid upon their operations, and reached the decision to attack American shipping wherever found. Only this inference can be drawn from the attempt to torpedo the Greer, and the destruction of the Robin Moor, the Steel Seafarer and the Sessa. In the case of the Robin Moor, the President declared that a Nazi submarine had "flagrantly violated the right of United States vessels freely to navigate the seas subject only to a belligerent right accepted under international law."

As the President clearly has stated, the issue at stake is that of the freedom of the seas. It is an issue which affects not only the war in Europe but the situation in the Pacific and the Far East. Acceptance by the United States of German attack upon our vessels would be regarded by Japan as a surrender, and interference with American ships plying the Pacific, and carrying supplies to Russia via Vladivostok, might be expected to follow. More than this, the belief would prevail throughout the world that this Government had been bluffing, and our influence amongst the Pan-American Republics would diminish to the vanishing point. This is the opinion the Administration entertains, and unquestionably it played its part in the consideration given to the measures the President has deemed it necessary to take.

Reports have been current during the week that the United States and Japan have approached to an understanding relative to the controversies existing between them. Secretary Hull has denied that any substantial progress has been made. Yet the fact remains that the negotiations are continuing, that there has been an amelioration in the tone of press comments and official statements emanating from Tokyo, and that steps have been taken to subordinate the army command to the Emperor. Entering into the determination of the policy of Japan, is the continued resistance of the Russians, not only of their Armies, which remain intact, but of the populace, which is desperately attacking the invaders. The Tokyo militarists who have believed Germany invincible, now are beginning to realize that she is in the same position as their country is in China. Hitler's hosts are fighting in the front and the rear, and the indications are they will be forced to dig in for the winter, and turn their energies in other directions. In the same way, Japan has been compelled to establish lines in China, and to march into Indo-China, and the end of her military operations is not in sight. In the light of these similar conditions, necessarily there has been support given to the view of the small group around the Emperor that it is wise to pourparler with the United States while awaiting the result in Russia.

To return to the comparison of the situation which existed in 1916-17 and that today, there was dissatisfaction then with the blockade methods of Britain, with her extensive list of contraband, her interference with our trade, and her observance of methods which unreasonably benefited British commerce to the damage of our own. Forceful notes were sent to the British Government regarding these various activities, and they were kept in the realm of diplomacy only because Secretary Lansing firmly believed that ultimately the United States would find itself associated with the Allies in the war. Current for weeks past have been reports that materials obtained from the United States under the Lend-Lease Act were being used in direct competition with American industry in export markets. More conciliatory than was the British Government of a quarter of a century ago, the Churchill Ministry has advised us officially that Lend-Lease material has not been and will not be used by the British for export, and that any materials similar to those supplied under Lend-Lease aid will not be applied in such a way as to enable exporters to enter new markets, or extend their export trade at the expense of United States exporters. Moreover, the British have promised to control distribution of such aid so that there will be no more than a fair return for services rendered, nor to sell food obtained through Lend-Lease aid at uncontrolled prices, and in some cases, notably milk products, to distribute them free. By these promises, it is believed anti-British propaganda based upon misuse of Lend-Lease aid, will be effectively countered.

Army Air Forces—The first of three projected Air Corps Replacement Training Centers, which will serve as conditioning and processing stations for flying cadets, was opened at Maxwell Field, Ala., last week when 683 aviation cadets arrived to begin training. Other Replacement Centers to induct and condition cadets in the Gulf Coast Training Center, with headquarters at Randolph Field, Texas, and the West Coast Training Center, Moffett Field, Calif., will be opened shortly. Officer personnel to the latter two centers is already being assigned.

With the activation of these new centers, five weeks will be added to the former 30-week Air Corps pilot training program. Henceforth, rookie cadets will not go straight to the elementary flying schools, but first will be processed, instructed in military drill, put in physical shape, and generally seasoned before being allowed to begin actual flying instruction. The centers will be composed of two schools, the pilot and the air crew, the latter being devoted to the training of cadets who have failed in their flying but who desire to remain in the service as well as others who are on a non-flying status, to be bombardiers and navigators.

The two hard-hitting air combat forces, the newly created 2nd and 3rd Air Task Forces which have been established to provide aviation co-operation for the Second and Third Armies in the field maneuvers now in progress in the Louisiana area, have passed to command of the general officers who will lead them into "battle." Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding general of the Second Air Force, has taken over the command of the 2nd Air Task Force, and Maj. Gen. Herbert A. Dargue, commanding general of the First Air Force, at the same moment took over the command of the 3rd Air Task Force, which has been assigned to the Third Army. The 2nd Task Force is assigned to the Second Army. The headquarters of these commanding generals in the "combat" zone have not been announced.

The Army Exchange Service has been extended to include all Army Air Force Stations, according to a recent circular letter by the War Department. The letter states that: "Because of the mutual advantages that will result both to the Air Force post exchanges and the Army Exchange Service, post exchanges at stations of the Army Air Force will continue to operate under the jurisdiction of the Army Exchange Service and corps area commanders as provided in Circular No. 124, War Department, 28 June 1941, and AR 210-65 (tentative), 1 July 1941."

The assignment of Bernt Balchen, as captain, Specialist Reserve, to the Air War Plans and Division of the Army Air Forces, was announced this week by the War Department. Captain Balchen was one of the pilots on the flights of Admiral Byrd across the Atlantic in 1927 and over the Antarctic regions from 1928 to 1930.

Fourteen squadrons of U. S. Army Air Corps soldiers, involving 2,920 men, will leave Randolph Field, Tex., within the next ninety days to provide man power for the two new basic schools in Oklahoma and Texas. Created by a training center order, the new units as yet have not complete personnel, but have been named for the new field.

Seven Squadrons—the 472nd, 473rd, 474th and 475th School Squadrons, and the 60th Air Base Group, (Sp.), which includes a Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, the 80th Air Base Sq., and the 94th Materiel Sq., are slated to be transferred to the new field under construction at Enid, Okla. Units assigned to the new field at Waco, Tex., on which construction is underway, are the 468th, 469th, 470th and 471st School Squadrons, and the 59th Air Base Group (Sp.), which includes another Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron and the 79th Air Base Squadron and the 93rd Materiel Squadron.

Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, Air Corps Technical Training Command, moved their headquarters from Chanute Field, Ill., to Tulsa, Okla., on 7 Sept. The Air Corps Technical Training Command handles the technical training of the Air Corps and enlisted men of this command are trained in five army and 14 civilian institutions.

The War Department this week announced that the 94th Air Base Group was constituted 30 Aug. The Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron and 311th Materiel Sq. (Sp.) were called into active service 1 Sept. at Westover Field, Mass., from personnel of the existing units at that station. The permanent station will be Presque Isle, Me. When these units are moved to Presque Isle, they will revert to control of the Chief of Air Corps for the Ferrying Command Service. The eventual strength for the Headquarters and Headquarters Sq. will be 20 officers and 200 enlisted men, and for the Materiel Squadron, 10 officers and 348 enlisted men.

Chemical Warfare Service—1st Lt. John N. Dick, CWS, head of the recently created Civilian Defense Division, returned to Washington this week from an inspection trip which took him and Lt. Col. George J. P. Fisher, CWS, executive officer of the Chemical Warfare School, Edgewood Arsenal, Md., from the Texas-Louisiana maneuver area across the continent to San Francisco, Calif.

After observing various phases of the maneuvers, the two CWS officers embarked on an inspection tour during which they visited Baton Rouge, La., New Orleans, La., Mobile, Ala., Pensacola, Fla., San Antonio, Tex., Texas A. and M., at Bryan, Tex., San Francisco, Calif., and Camp Grant, Ill. Purpose of this trip was to arrange sites for the establishing of three new Chemical Warfare Schools, to be patterned after the school at Edgewood.

The schools, to be operated by the Chemical Warfare Service, will instruct policemen, firemen, and citizens in the protection of civilian populations. This instruction will be carried on in cooperation with and at the request of the Office of Civilian Defense, headed by Mayor Fiorello L. LaGuardia, New York. Officers of the CWS will meet this week with officials of the Office of Civilian Defense to discuss plans for the immediate establishment of these new schools.

An Incendiary Branch has been established in the Office of the Chief of Chemical Warfare Service with Col. J. E. Zanetti, CWS, as Chief of Branch. Colonel Zanetti, who recently returned from an official observation trip to London where he studied British development with regard to incendiaries, will have charge of coordinating all matters pertaining to incendiaries and supervise the development, procurement, storage, and issue of these agents.

Lt. Col. M. B. Chittick, CWS, has been transferred from the Engineering Section of the Technical Division to the Incendiary Branch, while others assigned to duty in this new branch are Capt. Marshall Stubbs, Lt. Wiley W. Carr, and Lt. Charles L. Rochwood.

Lt. Col. C. M. Kellogg, CWS, has returned to duty in the Office of the Chief, after a course at the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. Colonel Kellogg will be assigned to the field service.

Armored Force—Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Armored Force, has returned to his headquarters at Ft. Knox, Ky., after visiting Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., and the War Department last week. General Devers, who spent four days of last week in Washington and Aberdeen, made the trip from Ft. Knox by plane.

He arrived at Aberdeen Proving Ground on 3 Sept., and inspected every type of armored vehicle—including both standardized and experimental models—at the Aberdeen Proving Ground. From the inspection of the armored vehicles, General Devers watched firing tests of all types of guns mounted on motor vehicles—including 37-mm guns on "Jeeps" and "swamp buggies" and 75-mm guns on half-track trucks. He was also shown the Aberdeen and the Jones gun-mounts for one-fourth ton vehicles. General Devers showed particular interest in the .50 calibre multiple gun-mount and expressed the opinion that this gun afforded excellent protection for motorized convoys against hostile aircraft. He also made an inspection of tanks that had been subjected to various firing tests.

Immediately following the inspection, General Devers held a lengthy conference with high Ordnance officials on matters relating to expediting tank production, storage problems in medium tanks, and the effectiveness of the present M-3 tank from the standpoint of lessons learned from the European War. He then came to Washington and for a conference that extended over the latter part of the week. At Aberdeen he won the esteem of tank drivers, by driving one of the improved tanks in which a new-type steering mechanism had been installed.

The 5th Armored Division, which will be activated on 1 Oct. at Ft. Knox, Ky., will be maintained at a reduced strength of not more than 7,000 enlisted men. The new unit will be commanded by Brig. Gen. J. W. Heard. Orders are now being issued intermittently on General Heard's special staff which will assist him in the organization of the new unit. Regimental commanders of the division have not yet been named.

The Armored Force will supply the cadre of commissioned and enlisted men for the new division. Trainees completing the basic course of instruction at the Armored Force Replacement Training Center during September will be used as fillers and replacements.

The following units have been assigned to the newly authorized division: Division Headquarters (Armored); Headquarters Company (Armored); and 5th Armored Brigade including Headquarters and Headquarters Company 31st Armored Regiment (L), 34th Armored Regiment (L) (less band), 81st Armored Regiment (M) (less band), 65th Field Artillery (105-mm Howitzer) (Armored) (less band), 46th Infantry Regiment (Armored) (less band), 75th Medical Battalion (Armored), 21st Ordnance Battalion (Maintenance) (Armored), 19th Quartermaster Battalion (Armored), 85th Armored Reconnaissance Battalion, and 145th Signal Armored Company.

The 22nd Engineer Regiment (General Service) and the 58th Field Artillery Regiment (155-mm gun) (Motorized) have been withdrawn from allotment to the Third Corps Area and will be assigned to the 5th Armored Division 1 Oct., as respectively, the 22nd Engineer Battalion (Armored Division) and the 58th Field Artillery Battalion (105-mm Howitzer) (Armored). These units have been modified to conform to the set-up in Armored Division where Field Artillery and attached troops are constituted as battalions, instead of regiments as in the square-type division.

Relative to the assignment of personnel to the 5th Armored Division, the War Department has announced that AG 320.2 (8-22-41) MR-M-C, has been amended by the addition of the following: "Individuals assigned to enlisted cadres will create vacancies in their present grade and in their present organizations on 1 September, 1941. They may be promoted to grades to be held in organizations activated on the effective date of the allotment of grades and ratings thereto."

The War Department announced this week the award of two competitive-bid, lump-sum contracts for the construction of Armored Division camps at Santa Maria-Lompoc, California, and Fort Smith, Arkansas. These contracts were awarded with the approval of the Office of Production Management.

Provisional Parachute Group—The Provisional Parachute Group, commanded by Col. William C. Lee, Inf., this week served notice on both the Second and Third Armies, that they will have to maintain an "alert" against parachute troops during their Louisiana field maneuvers which will reach "battle pitch" this month. Elements of the 502nd Parachute Battalion, which was activated only ten weeks ago, will drop from the skies during some undisclosed phase of battle operations between the Second and Third Armies. This will be the first time that parachute troops will have been employed by the Army in large-scale maneuvers.

The 502nd Parachute Battalion, commanded by Maj. George F. Howell, Inf., was activated on 1 July. According to the announcement of the participation in maneuvers, the 502nd Battalion will be used "by reason of their rapid training progress." The Battalion will be used by both the Second and Third Armies, but neither of the Armies will have exclusive use of the parachute force. They may be used by one army during one phase of operations, and by the other in another, and throughout the entire period of simulated warfare, troops will be under the immediate jurisdiction of the maneuver director at General Headquarters. The assignment of the parachute force will remain a military secret until the very moment they drop from the sky.

Planes are already en route to the battalion's station. Combined training will be carried out to effect the smooth-functioning combat teams, and after preliminary training, planes and troops will move separately to some unannounced base well behind battle lines. At a specified "H" hour—known only to General Headquarters and the commanders directly involved—the parachute troops will move to previously appointed bases, scattered over a wide area so as not to attract undue notice from "enemy" aviation. The parachutists will meet their planes, a few at each advance base, to round out the combat team, still maintaining the element of secrecy. Then, possibly under cover of night, the planes will take off from the scattered jumping-off base for the air rendezvous—a specified point in the air where the whole force will meet and proceed to the mission. The parachutists will be armed and equipped as they would for actual combat.

The Provisional Parachute Group has sounded a call for 971 parachute troops in an effort to bring the three existing battalions up to full strength and to provide personnel for the 504th Battalion which will be activated on 1 Oct. Under the new requirements for parachute troops only men between the ages of 21 to 27 years will be accepted. The former policy required that candidates must be between the age of 21 and 30 years. The 971 new parachute troops will be taken from selectees stationed at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and Camp Croft, S. C. They will all be trained at the Provisional Parachute School, Ft. Benning, Ga., and will constitute the largest influx of candidates ever taken into the Provisional Parachute Group.

According to figures released this week, 627 Parachute troops have been qualified at the Provisional Parachute School, Ft. Benning, Ga. In all, parachute troops as of the last day of August had made a total of 7,141 jumps—3,220 of which have been made by the veteran 501st Battalion. A total of 3,844 jumps were made at the Provisional Parachute School since it was opened early this spring. Of this total, 78 jumps were made by the 502nd Parachute Battalion—the rest of the jumps being made by troops undergoing training at the school but not yet assigned to a particular battalion.

Quartermaster Corps—Lt. Col. Frank Brezhna, QMC, supply division, Office of the Quartermaster General, has been transferred to duty in the Philippines at the request of Lt. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commanding officer of the United States Forces in the Far East. Colonel Brezhna has been succeeded by Lt. Col. H. M. Schofield, QMC.

At the suggestion of an interested lieutenant, the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL queried officials of the Quartermaster Corps this week concerning the correct wearing of the new khaki field hat. We were informed that no definite regulations concerning its wearing have been promulgated, but that it was the intention of the Quartermaster Corps that these hats should be worn with the brim down all the way around. Thus, the soldier would be protected from sun and rain on the back of his neck as well as off his face. It was pointed out, however, that if a commanding officer issues an order to the contrary, his order must be complied with, since there is no official regulation.

While giving us this information, the officials again emphasized that these field hats are not to be worn after retreat is sounded, and by all means should not be worn when soldiers are on leave. They are to be replaced at the end of the day's work by the overseas cap.

More than 36,000,000 yards of duck material is being dyed and finished for the Quartermaster Corps as part of the 1942 Army tent program. The tentage is colored a dark olive drab which blends with trees and foliage thereby making detection from air more difficult.

The Quartermaster Corps has established seven motor supply depots to furnish spare vehicle parts to motorized units of the Army. The depots, which will have a maximum supply of parts sufficient for approximately one year and a minimum supply for three months. The depots are located at Schenectady, N. Y.; Baltimore, Md.; Atlanta, Ga.; Ft. Wayne, Mich.; Ft. Crook, Neb.; Normoyle Quartermaster Depot, Tex.; and Emeryville, Calif.

Coast Artillery Corps—A new device which saves 60 to 70 per cent of the time required for training anti-aircraft machine gunners reduces ammunition consumption in training about 10,000 rounds per man. The device, called the tracer control trainer, was developed by Lt. Col. Oscar D. McNeely, now on duty at the Coast Artillery School, Ft. Monroe, Va., where the trainer has been tested in the instruction of fire control of 30 and 50-calibre anti-aircraft gunners.

The trainer is a box about nine feet long, fitted with handwheels exactly like those on anti-aircraft guns. At one end are two observation holes, one for each of the student range adjusters who operate the handwheels. As in actual firing of anti-aircraft guns, one student operates the lateral controls, the other operates the elevation movement. Through the holes, at the far end of the trainer, is a miniature airplane. The theoretical trajectory of fire is outlined by a series of tiny, stationary, electric light bulbs, similar to those used in surgical instruments. These bulbs simulate the path of a stream of flaming tracer bullets. The object of the students operating the trajectory of fire is to bear squarely on the miniature airplane by manipulating the handwheels. Although the wheels function exactly like those on real fire control apparatus, the result is the reverse—the manipulation of the handwheels brings the miniature plane into the line of "fire" instead of directing the fire upon the target.

Bringing the plane in line with the bulbs at the prescribed ranges, which are measured off to scale on the line of lights up to 4,500 feet, means a "hit." The difficulty of scoring a hit is approximately the same as in actual firing, the two instructors are constantly manipulating control tables which throw the students off the target at the same rate of deflection change as would occur in a plane's flight. The trainer is not adaptable, however, for training in the use of larger anti-aircraft weapons than the 130 and 50 calibre machine guns.

Lt. Col. H. W. Cochran, commanding officer of the 301st Coast Artillery Battalion (Barrage Balloon), has awarded the "E" for excellence flag to Battery C for the week of 23 to 30 Aug. The flag is awarded each week to the battery in the 301st Artillery which is adjudged the best in various phases of the training program.

The 423rd Separate Coast Artillery Battalion (AA) has been constituted and is being formed at Ft. Bliss, Texas. Personnel for the new battalion is being supplied from the 39th Coast Artillery Brigade (AA), the 63rd Coast Artillery (AA), and the 79th Coast Artillery (AA), all stationed at Ft. Bliss.

The War Department has ordered the activation of the following additional training units by the Corps Area commander concerned at Coast Artillery Replacement Training Centers: two group headquarters, two battalion headquarters and six batteries at Camp Wallace, Texas; four colored batteries at Camp Eustis, Va.; and a battalion headquarters at Camp Callan, Calif.

Another note from the 301st Coast Artillery at Camp Davis, states that six barrage balloon "beds" have been completed at Folkstone, just northeast of Camp Davis. The work necessitated clearing the ground so that it was entirely free of trees, stumps and other obstacles that might hinder a barrage balloon in ascending or descending. Each "bed" is also graded and drained.

Pvt. Stephen J. Suriano, of Battery A, 301st Coast Artillery, Camp Davis, N. C., was not satisfied with the flypaper that hung in his barracks. So, he took a solo trip into the woods near the camp and came back with some plants. He put the plants in cans and placed the cans on the window sill—and immediately the plants proceeded to catch the flies! Private Suriano couldn't give the botanical name for the plants, but according to information coming from Camp Davis they really work.

Finance Department—Two new disbursal units of the Finance Department will begin disbursing activities within the next few weeks. Created because of the great increase in disbursements made by the Finance Department, the units, located at Pittsburgh, Pa., and Erie Proving Ground, Lacarne, Ohio, will be commanded by Lt. Col. C. H. Farish, FD, and Lt. R. L. Metcalf, FD, respectively.

Mountain Troops—In rounding out a striking force that can operate on any terrain, the War Department is giving serious consideration to the formation of a division or more of mountain troops. These specially equipped troops would constitute a striking force similar to the German version of mountain troops, who were responsible to a great extent for the quick German victory over Greece. The plans for the creation of American mountain troops it is said are now being studied by the General Staff.

In make-up, it is pointed out, mountain troops would compare to those now used by Germany. It is believed that they would, for the most part, use pack-animals for the transportation of guns, ammunition, and supplies; however, it is stated that there is the possibility that a motorized column will probably be assigned to the unit to facilitate the movement of the unit where the terrain permits. It is pointed out that these motorized columns would travel with the division as long as the terrain permits, but when land travel becomes too difficult, would leave the division and meet it at some point along its planned march—the motorized columns circumnavigating the mountain range or ranges—while the mountain troops cross it or move about on the mountains as permitted.

Ski and snowshoe units also will probably be included in the make-up of the mountain divisions. At the present time the Army has one ski battalion which it claims is still in the "experimental" stages. However this unit is reportedly gaining high success for itself in its particular field and other battalions will possibly be organized to bolster the mountain divisions.

Officers say that the Army has been long in need of special mountain troops. They point out that French Alpine troops held the Italians at bay after the Italians declared war on France because the Alpine troops were specially equipped for mountain fighting while the Italian troops were not. In Greece, the Greek army they add, was, for a great part, made up of mountain troops. Again their high success against the Italians is accredited to that factor that in the rough mountain fighting they were superior to the Italians who had little if any mountain troops.

Then too, these officers state, mountain troops would be highly useful in fighting where a motorized army would bog down due to rain or snow. In a stalemate such as a winter campaign where motorized action is restricted or prohibited they could maneuver with almost the same ease as on any rough terrain.

Seamless Tanks—Lessons learned from the European War are being put into practical use by the U. S. Army as soon as possible. One of the most interesting lessons—and one which will save the lives of many American soldiers—is that of redesigning the rivets in tanks and the casting of the armor of tanks in as few pieces as possible.

At the outbreak of the European war, the United States and virtually all countries riveted armor on tanks. After a few battle engagements of such tanks, particularly in France, it was found when these tanks were struck by shells—particularly the exploding 75-mm shell—that the force of the shell sheared off the rivet heads on the outside of the tanks. The driving force of the explosive then forced these cut rivets through their holes with such force as to spray the inside of the tank with broken rivets. A high number of casualties resulted to tank personnel because as one officer states "the rivets were forced through like someone spraying the inside of the tank with a shot-gun loaded with broken rivets."

In an effort to reduce such casualties, Army Ordnance experts began redesigning the rivets placed in American tanks. Redesigning of the rivets, it was found, reduced the possibility of the broken rivets spraying the inside of the tank. Ordnance experts then found that the armor could be fitted on with little or no reduction in strength, by a new welding process. This process has met with greater success than the redesigned rivets. The armor is cast with beveled edges which when welded together produces a smooth exterior so that bursting shells—although they might weaken the welds to some degree—would not drive metal inside the tanks.

Now it is reported that all new tanks will be cast so that their exterior is comparable to that of a modern automobile in smoothness. This officials say is the ideal way of producing tanks as it gives a greater over-all strength and at the same time eliminates the possibility that metals could be driven into the inside of the tank without first penetrating the thick armor. It is not known whether new tanks now coming off assembly lines are cast in a solid piece, but if they are not, they soon will be, according to all available information.

Army Industrial College—Nearing conclusion is Short Course, No. 3, which began in July and ends this month. Officer students are busy in research and committee-study preparing addresses and papers on varied subjects. On 9 Sept., Mr. P. E. Foxworth, Assistant Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation spoke to students of the college on the activities of the F. B. I. relative to National Defense. Dr. Enrique de Lozada, Special Consultant to the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, spoke on 11 Sept. on "Latin America."

Corps of Engineers—The War Department announced this week that Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, Chief of Engineers, would be retired from active service on 30 Sept. on his own application after more than 42 years of military service. General Schley is now on leave of absence pending retirement. He will be succeeded as Chief of Engineers by Brig. Gen. Eugene Reybold who is at present Acting Chief of Engineers.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, General Schley was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his World War Service. From 1932 to 1936, he was Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, after which he served one year as Commandant of the Engineer School, Ft. Belvoir, Va. He has been Chief of Engineers since 18 Oct. 1937.

Col. Joseph C. Mehaffey, Corps of Engineers, has been assigned to duty as engineer of maintenance, the Panama Canal. He was relieved from duty at headquarters, 1 Army Corps, Columbia, S. C.

Renewal of a contract with the National Academy of Sciences, Washington, D. C., for research and test work in connection with bombproof structures was announced by the Corps of Engineers this week. The contract, which provides a maximum reimbursement for cost incurred of $75,000, furnishes funds by which research in passive protection for both military and civilian personnel is conducted.

Through a clause in the contract, the War Department, which furnishes information assistance, including military supplies, apparatus, sites for tests, and necessary military and civilian personnel, will hold title to all information developed.

Effective immediately, an Engineer Reserve officer above the grade of first lieutenant will not be transferred to other branches, except Air Corps, or detailed in arms other than the Air Corps, except with the approval of the Chief of Engineers.

1st Lt. Robert A. Schmidt, CE, has been assigned to duty in the Operations and Training Section, Office Chief of Engineers.

Signal Corps—Leaving only a skeleton headquarters crew, the 161st Signal Photographic Co. will leave Ft. Benning, Ga. soon for Camden, S. C., where the organization will function during the forthcoming First Army maneuvers. The company will return to Ft. Benning about 1 Dec. Commanded by 1st Lt. R. T. Onffroy, SC, the company will specialize in action shots, some of which will be released to newspapers and news photo services.

The War Department announced this week that Signal Corps units listed below are redesignated as indicated: 301st Sig. Co., Avn. to 401st Sig. Co., Avn.; 304th Sig. Co., Avn. to 402d Sig. Co., Avn.; 308th Sig. Avn. Co. to 403d Sig. Co., Avn.; 310th Sig. Avn. Co. to 404th Sig. Co., Avn.; 311th Sig. Avn. Co. to 405th Sig. Co., Avn.; 327th Sig. Avn. Co. to 406th Sig. Co., Avn.; 328th Sig. Avn. Co. to 407th Sig. Co., Avn.; 329th Sig. Co. (Avn.) to 408th Sig. Co., Avn.; 330th Sig. Co. (Avn.) to 409th Sig. Co., Avn.; 51st Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. to 426th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn.; 52d Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. to 427th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn.; 33d Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. to 428th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn.; 54th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. to 429th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. and 55th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn. to 430th Sig. Maint. Co., Avn.

Ordnance Department—Contracts were awarded this week for architect-engineer services and construction in connection with the Illinois Ordnance Works, Crab Orchard, Ill. The plant, estimated to cost $23,589,095, will be utilized for shell and bomb loading.

Five new Ordnance Service Companies, Aviation, have been constituted by the War Department, and are being called to active service. They are: 850th Ord. Co., A., Chanute Fld., Ill., personnel from detachments of Ord. Serv. Companies at A. C. Technical School Stations; 851st Ord. Co., Maxwell Fld., Ala., personnel from detachments of Ord. Serv. Companies at Southeast A. C. Training Center School Stations; 852nd Ord. Co., Randolph Fld., Tex., personnel from Detachments of Ord. Serv. Companies at Gulf Coast A. C. Training Center School Stations; 853rd Ord. Co., Moffett Fld., Calif., personnel from detachments of Ord. Serv. Companies at West Coast A. C. Training Center School Stations; 854th Ord. Co., Wright Field, Ohio, personnel from detachments of Ord. Serv. Companies at A. C. Depots.

Chaplains—In a recent letter addressed to all chaplains of the Armed Forces, now numbering 1,510, Chief of Chaplains William R. Arnold reviewed with satisfaction the duties performed by the chaplains, and explained the important tasks before them.

"If ever a country and its armed defenders needed the help of God," Chaplain Arnold wrote, "this country and its Army need it now." He explained further that "the struggle we face . . . is a continuation of the war between Michael and Lucifer, between those who adore and serve God and those who are determined that God shall adore and serve them."

After commenting on the necessity for the extension of service, Chaplain Arnold told his chaplains that they could do much to help morale. "Our chaplains can help their men by promoting some real thinking on basic principles and critical issues," he wrote. He said that chaplains through their faith, courage, patience, and generous devotion can inspire men. Chaplain Arnold, in the closing paragraph of his letter, quoted a verse in St. Luke (17-33). "Whosoever shall seek to save his life, shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose it, shall preserve it." Chaplain Arnold added, "This principle of spiritual economy should be a point of meditation for every defender of personal or national freedom."

With fitting ecclesiastical and military ceremony, four new chapels will be dedicated tomorrow, 14 Sept., at Camp Grant, Ill. Built at a cost of approximately $100,000, the chapels seat 400 soldiers each and will be utilized by all denominations.

At initiatory ceremonies held on Sunday, 7 Sept., the new Base Chapel at Windsor Locks, Conn., was formally opened. The chapel, approximately 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, architecture of which is old New England colonial, seats 800.

Adjutant General's Department—Two hundred officers and 14 enlisted men are enrolled in the ninth course which began 8 Sept. at The Adjutant General's School, Arlington Cantonment, Va. A class of 204 officers and 47 enlisted men were graduated 29 Aug. from the eighth course and received their diplomas from Brig. Gen. James A. Ulio and Brig. Gen. William C. Rose, Assistants The Adjutant General.

While most of the students are detailed from the field forces and the nine Corps Areas, a new policy will bring officers from the Quartermaster Corps, Medical Department, Chemical Warfare Service, Ordnance Department, Coast Artillery Corps and Signal Corps. The course will close 24 Oct. after a four-day command post exercise in which all students will participate.

Army Morale Branch—Brig. Gen. F. H. Osborn, new Chief of the Army Morale Branch, has assigned Col. William H. Draper, Jr., Inf., to duty as Assistant Chief. Colonel Draper previously was on duty as Chief of the Welfare and Recreational Division that worked closely with the Joint Army and Navy Committee of Welfare and Recreation. General Osborn was chairman of the civilian committee before being appointed a brigadier general in the Reserve Corps and assigned to duty as Chief of the Army Morale Branch. He succeeds Brig. Gen. James A. Ulio, who will shortly enter Walter Reed Hospital to undergo an operation.

1st Col. Thomas J. Davis, AGD, was assigned to duty as Executive Officer of the Morale Branch.

Health of the Army—The Monthly Health Review of the Office of The Surgeon General of the Army reports that the admission rate for all causes for troops in the United States continued its downward trend to cause a rate of 977 per 1000. This figure is, however, well above the five year average of 557. The decrease was the result of a lower disease rate and was true of all corps areas. The Seventh Corps Area had the highest rate, the Second the lowest.

Addresses General Motors

Addressing representatives of the Fleet Sales Division, General Motors Corp., at Detroit, Mich., Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, Assistant to the Quartermaster General, this week discussed the problems of the Army Motor Transport and the role of the automotive industry has played during National Defense.

"In broadest terms," General Barzynski said, "the function of the Motor Transport Division is twofold—to secure the necessary motor vehicles for the Army and then 'Keep 'Em Rolling.'" He explained that thus there were two basic problems—Procurement and Maintenance.

He told his expert audience that the Army required 200 per cent more trucks in the two and one-half ton and over class than the automotive industry had been selling for the year. Continuing, General Barzynski said, "Today the program is well on its way to completion. Of the total number of vehicles necessary for the Protective Mobilization Plan, a large proportion is in the hands of troops and practically all of the remainder is contracted for prompt delivery."

"There is not the slightest doubt," he added, "that at the present moment motor transportation is far ahead of its position in 1917." He stated that "although the Quartermaster Corps received very limited appropriations for motor experimental purposes in the intervening years, it was possible to continue essential research indicating the kind of equipment needed in modern warfare."

Stressing the importance of standardization, General Barzynski said that the Army tries as much as possible to use as many of the same items as is practicable in trucks ranging in size from the ¼ ton "Jeeps" to the six-ton prime movers. "We hope," he said, "by proper modification and engineering compromise to even further increase this interchangeability and simplify supply."

He then explained the division of responsibility among the four echelons, elaborating on the work performed by each echelon. He said that truck drivers and their assistants should feel toward their vehicles as a cavalryman feels toward his horse. Noting that there was an abnormal demand for spare parts, General Barzynski said, "How to 'Keep 'Em Rolling' is a problem of supply and training; and training means first of all, creating an interest and desire in the Army to take care of its vehicles, and second, providing the technical knowledge to make this interest effective." Concluding his speech, he told the automotive men that research in motor transportation as it affects national defense was of vital importance as technical reserves of the future, but cautioned against the possibility that advance work would complicate and hinder present production.

Would Equip Officers

Senator Capper, of Kansas, has introduced a bill, S. 1891, which authorizes the War Department to issue to each officer of the Army of the United States, upon his reporting for active duty for a period of six months or more, uniforms and accessories not to exceed $447 in value. Text of the bill which has been referred to the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, is as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, the War Department is hereby authorized to issue to each officer of the Army of the United States, upon reporting for active duty, for a period of six months or more, all uniforms, boots, shoes, headgear, insignia, and other items of the prescribed uniform for the Army of the United States: Provided, That the money value of all issues so made, to each officer, shall not exceed $447.

"All items issued hereunder shall be the property of the United States and the officer to whom they are issued shall be accountable for them under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe."

New Camp Contemplated

The War Department this week simultaneously awarded a contract for architectural and engineering services covering layout and design of a triangular division camp at Corvallis, Ore., and terminated a contract previously awarded to develop plans for a camp site at Eugene, Ore. The new camp would if constructed accommodate approximately 30,000 troops and cost $22,800,000. Its construction is at the present time uncertain.

Mrs. Croft Honored

Mrs. Maribel W. Croft, widow of the late Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, Chief of Infantry, received a parade of 4,500 selectee soldiers at Camp Croft, S. C., on Saturday, 6 Sept. Mrs. Croft was escorted to Camp Croft from Hendersonville, N. C., by Col. Thomas D. Finley. Army Maximum Age Policy

Details of the War Department's new age-in-grade policy for Army officers on duty with troops and the methods of its application are contained in a letter being dispatched to the commanding general of each Army, Army Corps, Corps Area and Department, Division, and the Chief of the Armored Force.

The letter reveals, in addition to the details published in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, that a procedure is set up whereby officers of the National Guard or Reserves who are over the maximum age limits may apply for relief from active duty after six months' service.

The full text of the letter follows:

1. Maximum age-for-grade limitations—a. Effective immediately, and except as specifically indicated in subparagraph b below, the maximum age in grade of commissioned officers serving with troop units will be as follows:

(1) Promotion-list branches:
Major generals (division commanders) . . .	62
Brigadier generals	60
Colonels	55
Lieutenant colonels	52
Major	47
Captain	42
1st Lieutenants	35
2nd Lieutenants	30

(2) Non-promotion list branches (Medical Department and Chaplains):

(a) No age-in-grade requirement.
(b) Maximum age limit for service with troop units: 56 years, except the maximum age limit for duty on the staff of an Army is 58 years.
b. Until otherwise directed by the War Department the age-in-grade limitations specified therein will not apply to officers assigned to affiliated units of the Organized Reserve, or to officers assigned to service with units and installations of the Air Forces.

Defines "Troop Units"

2. Definition of service with troop units—The term "service with troop units" includes service with all units of the field forces, including overseas departments, and defense and base commands. Service "other than with troop units" includes all service with the War Department Overhead and Corps Area Service Commands, and, in overseas departments, and defense and base commands, it includes overhead installations which correspond to Corps Area Service Command.

3. Application of age-in-grade limitations.
a. Promotion-list branches. No commissioned officer of the promotion-list branches who has attained the age for grade specified above will hereafter be assigned to service with troop units (paragraph 2, above). Officers now serving with troop units who have attained or who hereafter attain the age indicated above will, to the extent practicable, be reassigned to other duty. Officers from the reserve components who are above the specified maximum age for their grade, for whom suitable positions away from troop units are not available, and those who are above the maximum age for the next higher grade (for example, majors 52 years of age or older) will be relieved from active duty upon completion of 12 months' service, unless sooner relieved as authorized in paragraph 6 below.

b. Non-promotion list branches. Officers of the non-promotion list branches will not be detailed to army staffs after reaching 58 years of age, and they will not be detailed to service with any other troop units after reaching 56 years of age.

c. In the initial application of the above policies, the elimination of overage officers from troop units, either by transfer or by relief from active duty, will be accomplished over a sufficient period of time to avoid impairment of unit efficiency.

d. General and special staff officers.—(1) Over-age officers now assigned to general and special staffs of armies and army corps will be continued on present duties until after completion of the fall maneuvers, unless their reassignment is necessary for reasons other than age-in-grade.

(2) Non-promotion list officers, now members of Army or Army Corps special staffs, who will be retired for age on or before 30 June 1942, who are performing efficient work and are capable of sustained effort, may be retained on such duty until retired. Replacements of these officers will be requested by the commanders concerned not later than 1 Jan. 1942. When such replacements are assigned they will be carried as additional members of the staff to which detailed until absorbed.

(3) Division general staff officers may, upon the recommendation of the division commander concerned, continue on present duties until after completion of the fall maneuvers.

e. Officers on foreign service.—Unless specifically recommended by the department or base commanders concerned with respect to particular individuals, officers now serving overseas who are overage in grade for service with troop units will not be returned to the United States solely because of age, prior to completion of their current tour of foreign service. To the maximum extent practicable, however, Department and Base Commanders will assign such officers to duty other than with troop units.

Procedure

a. Regular Army Officers.
(1) The reassignment of overage officers of the Regular Army will be accomplished by the War Department on the basis of information already available. Detailed instructions, supplementing this letter, will be furnished Chiefs of Arms and Services by The Adjutant General.

(2) Army and Army Corps Commanders may submit to The Adjutant General their recommendations for the detail of officers to general staff positions as replacements for overage general staff officers now assigned. Such replacements will be assigned effective after 1 Dec. 1941 unless earlier availability is essential. Recommendations should reach The Adjutant General not later than 15 Oct. 1941.

b. Officers' Reserve Corps.—See War Department letter of 23 Aug. 1941 (AG 210.31 OIC (8-18-41) OF-A) subject, "Extension of tours of active duty, Reserve officers."

c. National Guard of the United States.—The reassignment or relief from active duty of officers of the National Guard of the United States who are overage for service with troop units will be accomplished by or at the direction of The Adjutant General on the basis of information furnished pursuant to paragraph 5, below.

d. Except when relieved on their own request, as authorized in paragraph 6 below, no officer of the reserve components will be relieved from active duty solely because of age-in-grade prior to completion of twelve months' active Federal service.

National Guard Officers

5. Rosters of overage officers of the National Guard of the United States.

a. Immediately upon receipt of this directive, the commander of each National Guard division and separate National Guard unit will prepare rosters of overage National Guard officers under his command as follows:

(1) Roster "A."—Promotion-list officers who, on or before 30 June 1942, will have attained the maximum age for the next higher grade, as indicated in paragraph 1, above (for example, Colonels 60 and over, Lieutenant Colonels 55 and over, etc.).

(2) Roster "B."—Promotion-list officers who, on or before 30 June 1942, will have attained the maximum age for present grade, as indicated in paragraph 1, above, and who are not included on Roster "A."

(3) Roster "C."—Overage non-promotion-list officers.

b. For each overage officer the roster will indicate grade, arm or service, serial number, date of rank, present assignment, date of entry upon active duty, character of performance of active duty (satisfactory, excellent, etc.), date of birth, civilian occupation, and home address (city and state).

c. The following overage National Guard officers will be omitted from the above rosters:

(1) Those eligible and qualified for promotion to the next higher grade under current War Department instructions, whose promotion has been or is to be recommended to fill an existing vacancy, or a vacancy expected to occur as a result of this directive.

(2) Those who have been recommended for reclassification or whose resignations have been tendered.

(3) Those requesting immediate relief from active duty, as authorized in par. 6, below.

d. Names appearing upon each of the rosters required by sub-paragraph b, just above, will be grouped by arm or service, using a separate sheet for each branch. The designation and station of the reporting organization will appear on each sheet of each roster.

e. An original and two carbons of each roster will be prepared and forwarded direct to The Adjutant General of the Army, Washington, D. C. All rosters will be completed and forwarded by the originating organization within fifteen days after receipt of this letter.

Relief After 6 Months

6. a. Officers from the reserve components, now serving with troop units, and who are above the specified maximum age for their grade, may be relieved from active duty on their own request at any time after completion of six months' satisfactory service, provided reclassification has not been recommended and they are not under sentence of or awaiting trial by court martial.

b. Applications for relief from active duty under this authority will be initiated by the officer concerned, and will state the grade, arm or service, serial number, date of birth, assignment, station, home address, date of entry upon active duty, and the component of origin of the applicant. The application will be accompanied by report of physical examination (WD AGO Form No. 63) made in accordance with Circular No. 146, WD 1941.

c. The application will be forwarded direct to the commanding general of the corps area or station by the division or separate unit commander, who will indicate his approval or disapproval, the character of the officer's service, his status with respect to reclassification and court martial proceedings, whether or not his accounts for money and property responsibility have been satisfactorily closed, that he is or is not indebted to the United States, and the amount of unused accrued annual leave to which the applicant is entitled.

d. Upon receipt of a properly completed and satisfactory application for relief from duty under this authority the corps area commander will issue the necessary orders relieving the officer concerned from his current assignment and duty and directing him to proceed to his home, when, if a Reserve officer, he will revert to inactive status, or, if an officer of the National Guard of the United States, he will stand relieved from further duty in the active military service of the United States, and will revert to his National Guard status. The effective date of relief from active duty will, in all cases, be such as to allow the officer the normal time required for travel to his home, plus any accrued annual leave to which he may be entitled. After action has been taken, the application for relief from duty, with two copies of the relief order, will be forwarded by the corps area commander to The Adjutant General, Washington, D. C. If the officer is from the National Guard of the United States, one copy of the relief order will be forwarded direct to The Adjutant General of the State concerned. If a Reserve officer, one copy of the relief order will be forwarded direct to the corps area in which the officer resides.

e. Officers relieved from active duty under this authority will be furnished a Certificate of Service (WD AGO Form No. 280), in accordance with AR 345-500, 18 July 1941.

7. The promulgation of this policy is an initial step in a general program to insure that all officers serving with troop units are within the ages which permit efficient continuous performance of field duty under the arduous conditions of modern combat.

Ancient Timbers for New Ships

A large quantity of ancient live oak timbers, perhaps acquired for use in Civil War wooden naval vessels, has been uncovered in dredging operations at the New York Navy Yard and now will be put to use in connection with the construction of modern fighting ships. It is announced by Rear Adm. Edward J. Marquart, USN, Commandant of the Navy Yard.

Some of the timbers have been reserved for the Bureau of Ships for probable use in the maintenance of the 141-year-old frigates, the USS Constitution and USS Constellation.

Live oak, now almost impossible to obtain and prohibitively expensive, was used in wooden fighting ships because of its extreme hardness. The accepted method of preserving it in old shipyards was to place it in a timber basin. Gradually the wood became waterlogged and sank to the bottom. As long as it remained under water it would not rot. The timbers brought to the surface at the Navy Yard by dredging contractors are in perfect condition and of iron hardness.

There are straight timbers, hand hewn, more than two feet square and more than twenty feet long. There are also many ship's knees, right-angled timbers in which the natural grain of the wood follows the angle. Knees are used as braces in wooden ships where the deck meets the side of the ship.

The first timbers were brought to the surface by dredging contractors three months ago. There is now a pile of the massive timbers in the Navy Yard forty feet high and 100 feet across. Timbers are still being brought to the surface from as deep as forty-five feet below mean low water, or thirty-five feet in the mud, indicating that they were sunk many years ago.

Already some of the knees have been taken to the boat shop in the Yard and have been cut up into smaller knees to be used in construction of ship's boats. These are far stronger than knees from any other wood currently available.

Many of the larger timbers will be used as keel wedges for ships on building ways or in drydocks. The live oak is too hard and unyielding to be used for keel blocks, which must have a certain amount of resiliency, but is perfect for the keel wedges, which may be driven in or out to raise or lower the keel blocks to precise adjustment.

Other straight beams will be made into rams for driving launching wedges into place.

For maintaining the USS Constitution, "Old Ironsides," and the USS Constellation, in their original condition, this wood is unmatched.

1 Sept. 1941

The August meeting of the Signal Corps Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the quarters of Mrs. Albert M. Pigg, Tuesday, 26 Aug.

The Regent, Mrs. M. E. Gillette, presided and after a short business session turned over the meeting to Mrs. Dawson Olmstead. Mrs. Olmstead, wife of Brigadier General Olmstead, is the Vice-Regent of the Signal Corps Chapter and last May was appointed the New Jersey State chairman of the D. A. R. Committee for National Defense through Patriotic Education. She has spent a great amount of time and effort during the past summer on plans for the work of this committee and read to her own chapter a letter which she has written outlining the work which the State and National Societies hope to see accomplished during the coming year. This letter will be sent in the very near future to the Chapter Chairmen of each of the eighty-two New Jersey Chapters.

The Signal Corps Chapter of the D. A. R. is composed of Army women and its members have been very active during the past few months cooperating with the Red Cross, the Girl Scouts, the U. S. O. and other patriotic organizations. One or more representatives have acted as hostesses each Saturday afternoon at the Red Bank Elks Club since its establishment last April as a Soldier Recreation Center. This work has now taken over by the U. S. O. but the same women will continue serving as volunteer helpers.

A Style Show in April and a Bridge Party in June provided the funds for Recreational Equipment for the Replacement Training Center at Fort Monmouth and for other projects.

Although change of station has caused the departure from Fort Monmouth of many members of this Chapter, the number enrolled is constantly increasing because of new members joining the D. A. R. through the Signal Corps Chapter. A number of these prospective members attended the meeting on Tuesday. Also present were several Army women, members of other Chapters who, because they will be stationed at Fort Monmouth for some time and wish to continue their D. A. R. work, will become associate members.

Squantum Air Base

WPA workers at Squantum Naval Reserve Air Base (Massachusetts) are filling out the shore line where they have torn down piers and destroyer sheds used in World War No. 1. The reclaimed land will extend the boundaries of the field, which is used by Naval Reserve flyers for preliminary flight training. Most of the 176-acre field was constructed by WPA workers, who have also improved or built additions to 10 buildings, constructed drainage ditches, and installed boundary and obstruction lights. OBITUARIES

THE Armed Services, wherever they are stationed, learned with sincere regret of the passing of Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the revered Mother of their Commander-in-Chief. They knew that to this American woman was due in greatest measure the fashioning of the character of the loved son who has risen to eminence as President of the United States. Her trust and faith in him were implicit, her belief in his wisdom profound, and her pride in his achievements unlimited. The President knows, as every son knows, that the best in him came from his Mother, and the inspiration she gave him played its part in enabling him to gain the heights he has reached. A woman of sound mind, of tender consideration for others, of great charity, Mrs. Roosevelt will have a niche of her own in American history. To her distinguished son and beloved daughter, and their children and grandchildren, the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, speaking for the Army, the Navy and Marine Corps, extends their respectful sympathy.

Mrs. Anna R. Maus, widow of Col. L. Mervin Maus, MC, USA, died at her home at 216 W. Montgomery Ave., Rockville. (Continued on Next Page)

Morale Chief Assumes Duties

Called from civilian life and appointed in the Officers' Reserve Corps, Brig. Gen. Frederick H. Osborn this week assumed duties as Chief of the Morale Branch. Although headed by a former civilian, the Morale Branch will be staffed throughout with Army officers of long experience in morale activities.

Speaking to an ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL reporter, General Osborn said this week, "It certainly is my feeling that morale is out in the field, and a function of the commanding officer in the field." He explained that the activities of the Morale Branch with regard to the administration of post exchanges, the presentation of motion pictures, the planning of recreational facilities, etc., "are supplements to the work of the commanding officer in his responsibility for maintaining morale in his troops."

All Arms Conduct Bond Sale

As sale of defense bonds and stamps was opened this week to officers and civilian personnel of the Navy Department in Washington, attention was directed to the activities of the separate arms of the service, each of which is conducting a similar campaign among its personnel.

Planned as an investment campaign of long duration, the Navy sale of bonds and stamps will be extended on 1 Oct. to personnel in the Naval establishment throughout the country, the ultimate aim being to also include personnel stationed abroad, at bases, and in Navy Yards throughout the world. Rear Adm. Charles Conard, USN-Ret., is in charge of the Navy bond and stamp campaign. Admiral Conard is assisted by Comdr. Gerald A. Eubank, USNR, called to active duty to aid in the expansive program. These officials have emphasized that the Navy campaign has been designed as a permanent investment opportunity for all Navy personnel.

Under the direction of Maj. Gen. H. K. Loughry, Chief of Finance, plans are now being prepared for the sale of bonds and stamps among personnel of the War Department. Full particulars concerning the execution of this project, scheduled to begin in the near future, will be announced shortly according to officials of the Finance Department.

The Coast Guard, which is also conducting a campaign for the distribution of these bonds and stamps, announced this week that as of 28 Aug., $40,504 had already been collected, with an additional $27,723 recorded in monthly pledges. Just as in the Navy campaign, both Coast Guard personnel in the field and at headquarters have been given the opportunity to participate.

As part of the Naval establishment, the Marine Corps is including its sales in the larger Navy campaign. The Navy campaign is unique in that the Navy Department acts as a registering and issuing agent, thus much resembling the Post Office in the handling of bonds and stamps. From the School of Business Administration, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 24 graduates of the Navy Supply Officers' School will be assigned as assistants for disbursing to act as issuing and certifying agents in Navy Yards throughout the country.

Mass Production of Bombers

A bigger, improved Flying Fortress bomber, known as the B-17E, was ordered into mass production by the War Department last Saturday with the award of record contracts totaling $347,156,674.71 to two West Coast aircraft firms. Most cautious observers estimated that from 900 to 950 of these new super-bombers, described officially by the War Department as "a bigger, improved Flying Fortress with greater fire power than earlier Fortresses," are provided for under the new contracts.

The new four-engine B-17E bomber is approximately five feet longer and has greater gross weight and fire power than earlier Fortresses. The B-17E incorporates armament improvements resulting from lessons learned in the European war. These include power turrets both on the top and bottom of the fuselage and a "stinger" turret in the tail thus providing resistance to attack from any direction.

Names Changed on Reservations

The fortification reservation at Kiptopeke, Cape Charles, Va., is designated "Fort Winslow" in honor of the late General Eben Eveleth Winslow and the Signal Corps depot facilities in Philadelphia, Pa., formerly known as the Atwater-Kent plant, are designated as the "Philadelphia Signal Depot," the War Department has announced.

Air Force Combat Command

Activation of four Bomber Commands, competing the organization of the Air Force Combat Command, was announced this week. The new Bomber Commands, which followed the Air Support and Interceptor Commands as components of the four Air Forces, will constitute the backbone of the Air Forces.

Built out of the old Bombardment Wing organizations, which are now discontinued, the Bomber Command is charged with the mission of destroying hostile installations and attacking enemy personnel. The Bomber Commands differ from the Bombardment Wings inasmuch as there is no restriction on the number of groups which may be included in its organization. The Bombardment Wings were limited to two to four groups each. The new organization thus provides for more flexible and self-sufficient type action and is more capable of sustained operations than the wings.

The completed Air Force Combat Command was organized originally in 1935 as the GHQ Air Force, to meet the tactical need for a mobile striking force. It came into being through the findings of the Drum Board of 1933, which was composed of outstanding generals and the Chief of the Air Corps. Officially constituted on 1 March 1935, the new organization was placed under the command of Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews.

The striking force of the United States air power, the Air Force Combat Command has control of all Army aerial operations except for those units assigned or attached to task forces, overseas garrison, or other commanders.

The basic organization for continental defense is centered in the four Air Forces, which make up the Air Force Combat Command. The present four Air Forces are comparable to the original four Air Districts in their territorial boundaries. The headquarters of each of the four Air Force Combat Commands are as follows: 1st Air Force, Mitchel Field, N. Y.; 2nd Air Force, Geiger Field, Wash.; 3rd Air Force, MacDill Field, Fla.; and 4th Air Force, March Field, Calif.

Each Air Force consists of three major elements, the Interceptor Command, the Support Command and the Bomber Command. Each of the Air Forces has many operating bases within each Air Force Area, and with the speed and range of modern warplanes, each Force is in a position to support the other within a few hours.

Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, AC, is the present commanding general of the Air Force Combat Command.

The assignment and headquarters of the newly organized Bomber Commands are as follows: 1st Bomber Command, Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., assigned to 1st Air Force, Langley Field, Va.; 2nd Bomber Command, Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., assigned to 2nd Air Force, Ft. George Wright, Wash.; 3rd Bomber Command, Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., assigned to 3rd Air Force, Drew Field, Fla.; 4th Bomber Command, Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., assigned to 4th Air Force, Tucson, Ariz. With the constitution of the new bomber commands the 1st to 4th Bombardment Wings, Hq. and Hq. Sqdns., were placed on the inactive list.

The following units are assigned to the Bomber Commands:

1st Bomber Command—34th Bomb. Gp. (H.), Westover Fld., Mass.; 1st Recon. Sq. (H.), Westover Fld., Mass.; 43d Bomb. Gp. (H.), Bangor, Me.; 13th Recon. Sq. (H.), Bangor, Me.; 2d Bomb. Gp. He was promoted to present rank of brigadier general 1 Oct. 1939. He is at present on duty in the Office of Naval Intelligence, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

General Rowell served on foreign duty in Cuba, Philippine Islands, Nicaragua, Haiti and France, and has but recently returned from a tour of duty as observer in Asia, Europe and Africa. Has been in aviation continuously since 1923, and from 1935 to 1939 was Director of Marine Corps Aviation at Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington.

For extraordinary heroism and exceptionally meritorious service while in command of the Aircraft Squadrons in Nicaragua in 1927 and 1928, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal, and received a special letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy. Was also decorated by the President of Nicaragua with the Nicaraguan Distinguished Service Medal, the Medal of Merit, and the Medal of Distinction.

Urges "Sailor's Medal"

A bill authorizing the President to present a medal to be known as the Sailor's Medal to any person in the Navy or Naval Reserve, who distinguishes himself or herself by heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy, was introduced in the House by Delegate King, of Hawaii. Also to receive medals would be those to whom the Secretary of Navy has heretofore awarded a Letter of Commendation. The bill further provides that recipients of the Sailor's Medal will be entitled to two dollars additional pay per month from the date of the act of heroism on which the award is based. The bill, H. R. 5626, text of which follows, has been referred to the House Committee on Naval Affairs.

"Be it enacted, etc., That (a) under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, the President is authorized to present, but not in the name of Congress, a medal to be known as the Sailor's Medal, of appropriate design with accompanying ribbon, together with a rosette or other device to be worn in lieu thereof, to any person who while serving in any capacity with the United States Navy, including the Naval Reserve, shall hereafter distinguish himself or herself by heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy, or to any person to whom the Secretary of the Navy has heretofore awarded a Letter of Commendation.

"(b) No more than one Sailor's Medal shall be issued to any one person, but for each succeeding deed or act sufficient to justify the award of the Sailor's Medal the President may award a bar or other suitable device to be worn as he shall direct.

"(c) Each enlisted man or enrolled man to whom there shall be awarded the Sailor's Medal shall be entitled to additional pay at the rate of $2 per month from the date of the act of heroism on which the award is based, and each bar, or other suitable device, awarded for succeeding deeds of heroism shall entitle him to further additional pay at the rate of $2 per month from the date of the act of heroism for which such bar or other suitable device is awarded, and such additional pay shall continue throughout his active service, whether such service shall or shall not be continuous. No such additional pay shall be payable for service rendered prior to the date of the enactment of this Act."

Navy Employees Discharged

During the past six months it has been necessary for reasons of national security to discharge but 120 persons of nearly 200,000 employed in about a dozen of the larger industrial field establishments of the Navy. It was announced this week. Legal authority for such discharges is provided by Public Law 671, 70th Congress, the purpose of which is to safeguard the military establishments.

The Navy Department in the announcement said that contrary to public statements, the use of the broad authority permitting such summary removals has been used with the utmost restraint. It added that "the fact that only 120 out of 200,000 employees have been so removed in the Navy field establishments is held by the Navy Department as an indication of the prevailing loyalty of the bulk of employees." Actually, some 75 per cent of the removals were made since the declaration of the unlimited emergency.

Fight Moths

FINANCE

Financial Digest

How greatly the matter of inflation is bulking in the Administration consciousness was revealed by a speech which Secretary Morgenthau delivered in Boston on 10 September. The Secretary offered numerous antidotes for this evil, but emphasized the obvious when he said that "the most effective way to prevent a damaging rise in prices" was to increase the supply of available goods wherever possible by releasing surpluses from storage. The prices of foods necessarily are the fundamentals of the cost of living and influence the price of every other article. Wheat sold a year ago at 75 cents a bushel; it is now above $1.20. The price of cotton has doubled in the past year. The index of seven basic farm commodities has risen 66 per cent from the time the war began, and twelve basic food commodities have jumped 70 per cent. Both the United States and Canada have the largest surplus of wheat on record, and the Government has on hand some 7,000,000 bales of cotton.

With the world crying for these commodities, it would seem to be to our interest as well as those in need, to release these surpluses. However, merely to prevent their increase, the Agricultural Department is continuing restrictions by reducing wheat acreage, and holding cotton to the relative small levels of last year. Only in the matter of foodstuffs is the Agricultural Department abandoning its policy of scarcity for a policy of abundance. It has called for the "largest production in American history" in such commodities as eggs, milk and other dairy products, meat, vegetables and other products required by the people of devastated countries. With the higher income more widely distributed resulting from the huge expenditures of the Government, and the high level established for government loans, the farmers should get a bigger income, and this should make unnecessary the demands in Congress for legislation adding to the artificial measures that have been enacted to increase farm prices.

The Senate Committee which investigated the alleged oil and gas shortage, especially in the eastern states, has reported that nothing of the kind exists and has recommended the removal of the restrictions imposed. The Committee charged Secretary Ickes, petroleum co-ordinator, and his aids with over-enthusiasm in creating unnecessary alarm among the public. The Committee declared the shortage that exists is a shortage of surplus and not a shortage of products, or a lack of facilities to transport them.

The President has appointed a fact-finding commission to report on the threatened railroad strike. Under the Railroad Mediation Board, no strike can occur during the inquiry, nor for thirty days after the commission submits its report. Washington expects the commission to recommend pay raises of from 8 to 10 per cent, which would avert the strike.

Navy Calls for Engineers

The Navy Department announced this week that commissions in the U. S. Naval Reserve and an opportunity to enter upon active service as engineering officers afloat and ashore are now available to 1,450 young college graduates. In addition to the advantage of becoming junior officers in the Naval Reserve, many of those who enroll will derive the benefits of special training in highly technical subjects and thus become better equipped to obtain positions in civilian life upon the termination of their Naval service.

In this connection it is planned to send a number of those who successfully complete the Navy's training courses to special classes at various universities and Naval schools for postgraduate work in Diesel engineering, advanced radio technique and underwater sound operation. Candidate for the training must be unmarried,—between 20 and 28 years of age,—must have completed four years' work in an accredited university or college, including two years of mathematics of college grade, a course in physics, a course in chemistry, and a course in trigonometry. The trigonometry may have been taken in high school.

Those accepted for engineering training will be given the same preliminary training course of one month as apprentice seamen—without pay, but with travel, uniform and subsistence allowances—that is provided for the deck classes. This is to determine the officer-like qualifications of the candidates.

Those recommended for further training will undergo a 90-day course in engineering subjects at the Naval Reserve Midshipmen School on board the USS Prairie State, New York City, and at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. As Midshipmen in the U. S. Naval Reserve, they will draw full pay and allowances provided by law and regulations. The next available classes will commence in January.

Completing the 90-day course, successful candidates will be commissioned as Ensigns in the U. S. Naval Reserve for general engineering duties and will probably be ordered into active service. Selected individuals will be ordered to special classes at various Naval schools and universities for post graduate instruction that will equip them to fill special technical billets at Naval Establishments.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

To meet the increased demand for officers in the American merchant marine, the Maritime Commission announced this week an open competitive examination for appointment as cadet in either the engine or deck departments.

Several hundred future ship's officers will be selected on the basis of applications submitted to the Commission before 8 Nov. 1941 and subsequent examinations in algebra, plane geometry, and physics. Young men, 18-25, who pass both the scholastic and physical examinations, will then be placed on an eligible list from which they are appointed to cadet schools and thence to American merchant vessels and U. S. Army transports.

Cadets appointed by the Commission must qualify as cadets in the Merchant Marine Reserve of the U. S. Naval Reserve. They are then exempt from registration for selective service. In the event the merchant ships on which they are serving are taken over by the Navy, the cadets may be required to accept appointment as midshipman, M. N. R. and active Navy duty with pay and allowance for this grade. At the present time, 30 cadets are serving on merchant vessels acquired by the Navy.

"Liberty Fleet Day"

The launching of twelve new merchant ships will highlight the celebration of "Liberty Fleet Day" on Saturday, 27 Sept. Shipyards on all coasts of the United States will participate in the ceremonies, which will see at least three of the emergency cargo vessels, the EC-2, designated by the Commission as "Liberty Ships," launched.

The Commission is making plans in cooperation with the various shipyards for a fitting and colorful ceremony at each launching. Speaking at a recent press conference, Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, Chairman, U. S. Maritime Commission, said, "It is our desire to make 'Liberty Fleet Day' an event of nationwide scope and significance and the people of the United States are cordially invited by the Commission and shipbuilders to participate." He told his conference that President Roosevelt has been asked to address the nation by radio on that day.

Chairman Land, proud of the accelerated shipbuilding program, said that the pledge of two ships a day in 1942 and 1943 will be fulfilled. He explained that keels of the Liberty Ships to be launched on 27 Sept. were laid on 30 April, 19 May and 24 May, respectively, which means that only a little more than four months on the ways have been required for these first ships.

New Office

The Commission has announced creation of the Office of General Director of Shipping for the Maritime Commission, this to be directed by Mr. H. Harris Robson. The function of the new office will be to coordinate and supervise the functions and activities of the Division of Emergency Shipping, headed by Mr. Robson, and the Division of Operations and Traffic, headed by Mr. G. H. Helmbold.

American steamship owners and operators who have cooperated with the development of the American Merchant Marine will receive preference in the allocation of vessels in a given trade route, the Maritime Commission announced this week. Such a policy, which has been followed by the Commission in the allocation of former Danish, Italian, and German vessels to companies for operation, is now extended to cover approval by the Commission of charter or consignment of vessels in trade routes normally served by U. S. flag owners and operators who have been engaged in defined trades for a period of years.

83 Ordnance Inspectors Graduated

The second class of naval ordnance inspectors, 83 in number, were graduated this week at the Washington Navy Yard. The graduates, all ensigns in the naval reserve, will be assigned to various sections of the country to inspect ordnance materials for the Navy Department.

Present at the graduation exercises at the Ordnance Inspectors' School at the yard were Rear Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance and Rear Adm. George T. Pettengill, USN, Commandant of the Washington Navy Yard.

The training course given the ensigns was of a month's duration and consisted of shop visits in the yard, study and lectures. Prior to coming to the Navy Yard, these naval officers had spent a month at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., where they were indoctrinated into the service and received training in gunnery.

General Krueger's Address

Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of the Third Army, made the following address at the critique at conclusion of field maneuvers between the V and VII Army Corps at Camp Polk, La., on 28 Aug.

BLUE: The mission of the VIII Army Corps strictly defensive and required it to make a major effort in order to protect the concentration of the Army at Shreveport and Mansfield. It was given the general area in which to establish a defensive position, an area which included the high ground in the vicinity of Peason and furnished a number of possible positions for the selection of the exact location. The position selected was excellent and one which would be difficult to turn. With its left on Kisatchie Bayou and its right on Toro Creek, the VIII Army Corps disposed its three divisions on a front of about 28,000 yards. The terrain in this area was exceptionally favorable for defense and delaying action. The VIII Army Corps had every opportunity for putting up a strong defense against the V Army Corps. With the Red River on its left and the Sabine River on its right it also had the opportunity of preventing the Armored Force of the Red Corps from making a wide encircling maneuver. Knowing that this powerful and mobile force was opposed to it, I believe that had the VIII Army Corps taken more active means of preventing the Armored Division from crossing the Red and Sabine Rivers in its rear that it could have accomplished its mission of holding on or delaying the Red advance south of Mansfield. This opportunity seemed particularly apparent after Blue knew that the Armored Division was definitely committed to an advance west of the Sabine.

As it turned out, the corps depended on a few demolitions and a few engineers to protect the bridges, which were not sufficient to prevent the crossing of the Armored Force. The selection of locations for demolitions east of Logansport was good but some of these demolitions were poorly executed and umpires ruled that very little damage had been accomplished. The long bridge over the Sabine River was blown at a point where it was only six feet off the ground instead of in the center where the falling span could not be used. These demolitions were protected by a few engineers only. At a vital point, such as Logansport, this matter should have been supervised directly by the corps staff. In addition, mobile forces with anti-tank means should have been in the vicinity prepared to move to these vital points and assist in protecting bridges. If the armored division had been unable to cross on the main roads other Blue mobile forces should have been available to prevent bridging operations. The Sabine River is such a serious obstacle that I believe that had this been done the VIII Army Corps would probably have been able to accomplish its mission.

RED: The V Army Corps plan provided for an advance of its infantry and cavalry divisions toward the north and with the 2d Armored Division west of the Sabine River. It was obvious that the Corps intended offensive action but the orders issued to the infantry divisions were purely to advance. Each of the leading infantry divisions was given a road and ordered to advance, with its mass along these roads. The frontage of the Corps was too wide for concerted action and when the enemy was contacted and the divisions deployed, large gaps were left in the line. If the three Red divisions had advanced to the attack in compact formation, the Blue VIII Corps could have been pinned to its position. The Blue force would not have been able to counterattack so effectively, nor would it have had reserves for the counterattacks launched in the later stage of the exercise.

The Armored Division moved west of the Sabine River on the night of 24-25 Aug. for a wide sweep through Logansport and Carthage. This division was operating under secret orders which gave it the mission of attacking the Blue rear in the Mansfield-Peason Hill area. This disposition incurred the risk of fighting a battle with divided forces.

In checking the plans of both Red and Blue it was noted that both had attempted to "G-2 the problem" prior to the issuance of the Third Army directive. The VIII Army Corps received its instructions at 5:00 a. m., 24 Aug. This was done in order to allow the corps time to reconnoiter and lay out the defensive positions. The corps seemingly had made plans for every eventuality and early on Sunday morning its troops were in motion to their positions.

The V Army Corps issued orders for the advance and the attack before its own mission or location of the enemy were known. The Army directive for the corps was not issued until 5:00 a. m., 25 Aug. Nevertheless, the V Army Corps order on 24 Aug. directed numerous shifts in the location of its troops and the movement of the 2d Armored Division to the west side of the Sabine River.

There was nothing in the problem to prevent such action, but it would have been better not to have anticipated the Army directive. Such actions unnecessarily deprived many men of needed rest.

Of course it is always desirable to issue orders well in advance so that the smaller unit may have time for necessary reconnaissance and planning. Though orders should be clear and exact, they should also be as brief as it is possible to make them and still have them picture the operation desired. After orders are issued it is absolutely essential to insure that they reach the lower unit and that the man who is charged with executing them understands the part which he is to play in the operation. There were two or three reports of orders being received late. A number of instances were reported where even though the unit received the order for the intended operation on time, it was not advised of the missions of adjacent units. Any unit making a supreme effort is most certainly entitled to know how it fits into the general scheme. Fragmentary orders have their place in the issuing of instructions to a large command. If we tried to write all instructions and directions out in full our orders would be so cluttered up as to make them worthless. But even fragmentary orders should contain the essentials of the five-paragraph scheme. For example, one unit received an order which stated that its corps was withdrawing and the order directed that the unit fall back. No line was given in this fragmentary order to which the main force was to withdraw, and no point or line was designated to which the unit receiving the order was to withdraw. Numbers of service elements were not kept advised of the situation. One observer stated that a division Military Police company and a quartermaster regiment did not know at 4:00 p. m., on the 25th of August, that the problem had started.

The utmost coordination is necessary in a unit as large as a corps if it is to function in an effective manner. Only through coordination can its full force be used.

This coordination is likewise necessary between the air and ground, and especially necessary between armored forces and combat aviation. The functioning of the observation aviation in this problem was really excellent. The coordination between the 2d Armored Division and the 17th Light Bombardment Squadron left much to be desired. In one instance, the bombardment squadron actually attacked the 2d Armored Division. It is true that its loads were theoretically only 30-pound fragmentation bombs, but the damage and confusion would have been considerable. This same squadron also attacked elements of the 37th Division. I am glad that the errors were so glaring as to make them outstanding. By bringing this failure to your attention in this manner, I am sure that you will take immediate steps to make this cooperation between air and ground forces more effective. However, I watched the long movement of the 2d Armored Division, and with the exception of a temporary jam in the north, the conduct of the operation was excellent.

We still have a long way to go to make our infantry-artillery team more effective; though in general the actions were reported as being fair, there still remains a great deal to be done. There were numerous reports of failures to make proper infantry reconnaissance and to maintain constant patrolling. Contact once gained must never be lost!

In the artillery, liaison and observation were much better. Reports indicate that most of the units tried to correct the errors noted in the preceding problem. Particularly in the VIII Army Corps, where the artillery units had time to perfect their organization, the matter of liaison and coordinated action with the infantry was good.

In many instances, shortcomings and faults that I brought to your attention in previous critiques were still glaringly evident. Every credit is due to the many units whose conduct was excellent; but not much excuse can be found for those still behindhand. For example, I personally noted trucks filled with sleeping soldiers on Highway 171 on 25 Aug., very close to a bridge that was under artillery fire. And this in the presence of the regimental and battalion commanders! Likewise, on the same day, on both the Blue and the Red sides I noted hundreds of men and even many officers who wandered about in the combat zone without their arms and equipment. Also, many men everywhere were noted not wearing shirts, or with shirts hanging outside of trousers and their bare chests exposed. This certainly does not look well. Moreover, I noted splendid examples of soldierly conduct, notably in a truck column of the 38th Division, in which, though it was about 1:00 a. m., the men were seated in an orderly manner in their trucks. Yet there were many other cases in which the men were disposed in every position of abandon and without their equipment, sleeping peacefully, though they were close to the front. Then also, tops of troop carrying trucks, were not, in most cases, rolled back as required by orders. Moreover, in most places where troops had halted, the ground was littered with refuse, paper, and so on, of every kind. All this is the fault of our officers, who either do not perceive these errors at all; do not conceive them of consequence; or are too timid or supine to insist upon their correction.

Then again, units in many cases covered too wide a front. Appreciation of terrain and troop leading, while excellent in many cases, in general still leaves much to be desired and must be given immediate attention. Additional training should be provided in this during administrative breaks. A memorandum has just been issued in regard to this. During the coming CPX, for example, senior commanders will be absent from their units, but battalion commanders will have the chance to give their units additional instruction in minor tactics.

I spoke to you last week about ammunition supply and told you that I was having it checked. My reports show that there is still a great deal to be done in the handling of both infantry and artillery ammunition. Though transportation is short, instructions have been given that expenditure of ammunition will be allowed by umpires only as it is shown to be present in the unit. Certain units did this in a very satisfactory manner. One division, especially, had at least all units represented as drawing ammunition. The number of trucks or the number of trips was not sufficient to give the division complete refills, and this should be corrected. But there were others that did not play this part of the exercise at all. Two artillery battalions of one division did not even know where the ammunition supply points were located. One battalion of an artillery regiment had no information on ammunition credits. It had fired 1,054 rounds by the end of the problem and certainly needed immediate resupply. Another division's ammunition supply point was located at Pitkin. Up until 10:00 a. m., on the 27th, when the supply point closed, not one vehicle of that division had reported back to draw ammunition.

During this exercise every air field was inspected, and a great improvement in the layout of these fields was noted. There was an attempt to hide and camouflage the tentage, but planes were not well dispersed.

The VIII Army Corps, being in a defensive position, had a better opportunity to develop a complete anti-tank plan. The static part of this plan was good, except for the failure to defend, successfully, the line of the Sabine River. The corps organized a striking force from its anti-tank battalion with some infantry and other elements, and used it very effectively against the armored division. The outstanding point of this plan was the anti-tank intelligence work. As soon as the 2d Armored Division had been located, there was never a time that the VIII Army Corps did not know exactly where it was and what it was doing.

Again I desire to express my appreciation of the cheerful and willing manner in which the troops performed their duties. I am sure that if every officer here present will do his utmost to make training more interesting and valuable, we shall be able to develop the Third Army into an effective combat team.
